OLCC Suspends Legends Liquor License

Proposes to cancel alcohol privileges

The Oregon Liquor Control Commission placed an immediate suspension on alcohol sales and service at Legends in Culver, Wednesday, December 30. The OLCC is proposing to permanently cancel the liquor license for the business located at 319 West 1st.

"Continued operation of this business would be a serious risk to public safety," said OLCC Administrator Pamela S. Erickson.

There have been numerous violations within approximately three weeks. The most serious was an employee threatening to kill another employee with a firearm. The proposed cancellation notice also cites the operator for allowing an employee to sell to a visibly intoxicated person, being visibly intoxicated while on duty, and threatening and pushing police officers.

The owner is either unable or unwilling to control liquor law violations or prevent other incidents that create a serious threat to the public health and safety of the community.

The operator has until April 2, 1999 to request an OLCC hearing to contest the proposed license cancellation.

ing in the park when they heard a tree crack. As they ran for safety, one of the hikers, a young woman, was struck by the falling tree. She died as a result of injuries sustained from the accident. The name of the victim has not been released pending notification of the family.

Update: Missing 79-year-old Woman (3737 SE Liebe Street)

Subject: Rita Marguette Muntz

January 3, 1999, at approximately 2:10 in the afternoon, a family living in the 3800 block of SE Raymond Street, who had been away for the holidays since December 31, 1998, notified Portland Police that they had just found the body of an elderly woman in their backyard behind their garage.

The body was that of 79-year-old Rita Muntz, who was reported missing on December 29, 1998, by her son who lived with her at 3737 SE Liebe.

The family, who found Rita Muntz's body, said they had checked their backyard prior to leaving for the holidays, but had not specifically checked behind the garage.

An autopsy will be conducted by the Medical Examiner's Office to determine the cause and time of death.

The investigation is continuing.

Elderly and disabled at risk during cold weather

During this time of extreme cold weather, Multnomah County's Aging and Disability Services encourage the public to look out for their frail elderly neighbors or persons with disabilities who may be isolated or unable to get to a warm place. Persons with limited incomes and resources — and/or health problems — are particularly vulnerable during extreme weather conditions. Pneumonia is a very real threat to persons whose health is already compromised by cold weather. People who have a concern about an elderly or disabled neighbor or about staying warm themselves can call Multnomah County's Aging and Disability Services Helpline at 248-3646, 24 hours a day.

The Last Days Of Cleo's

Cleo-Lilliann Social Club, 3041 N. Williams Avenue Portland, Oregon 97227 (284-7150) has been part of the community for over forty years. Just as people change over the years, neighborhoods also change. The neighborhood surrounding Cleo's has changed. The liquor laws have also changed. The consequence for the club is that the club must change or die.

In the last few years, neighbors have complained about noise from club patrons, particularly at closing time. The majority of the complaints have to do with "loud voices" or "yelling." Also complained about are loud stereos, car alarms going off, "peeling out," etc. The club has made efforts to control the noise by having a noise policy and security guards.

Despite efforts of the club to control the noise, the Oregon Liquor Control Commission (OLCC) has issued the club a "ticket" or notice of violation, charging the club with violating ORS 471.315(1)(c) "Neighborhood Livability." The possible penalty for the ticket is license cancellation.

In light of the possible cancellation of the liquor license, the club has outlined five possible scenarios to be accomplished by May 31, 1999: (1) Relocate to a non-residential neighborhood (2) Operate in the present location, primarily as a restaurant (3) Operate in the present location as a private club with an effective security guard force to keep the level of noise acceptable to the neighbors (4) Make no operational changes; ask for administrative hearing (5) Dissolve/cease operation. Community opinions about which scenario is most desirable and would be appreciated; call or write the club. Regarding option (2), if you would be interested in investing in a new corporation to operate a soul-food restaurant please call Robert Browning at the number shown in this article.

The club currently holds a private club (class b) liquor license. Most liquor licenses must be renewed each year. A city council endorsement of the license is part of the licensing process, and a City Council hearing may be part of the licensing process. The Bureau of Licenses makes recommendations to the City about whether a particular license should be renewed.

There may be a City Council hearing and a OLCC hearing on the club's liquor license within the next few months.

The club now seeks community support in two ways; patrons who come to the club, particularly at night must respect the fact that the club now is in a residential area, so there can be no noise that is likely to disturb neighbors. The club also needs financial support to fight the upcoming legal battles and to either move or continue operation in the present location. The club is now selling membership cards for $25 per year. You can support the continued operation of the club by applying for a new membership card, or by making a financial donation. Other ways to support the club include writing letters of support to the OLCC (P.O. Box 22297 Milwaukie, OR. 97269) and the Bureau of Licenses (1900 S.W. 4th Rm. 40, Portland, OR 97201).
