Obituary

Patricia Ann Waters

A memorial service was held Saturday in the Brooks Building, 3620 N. Williams for Patricia Ann Waters, who died Sept. 26 of non-alcoholic steatohepatitis (N.A.S.H.) at age 54.

Mrs. Waters was born April 26, 1946 in South Gate, Calif., and was raised in Portland. Her maiden name was Williams. She graduated from Washington High School in 1964, attended Portland Community College and graduated from Concordia College. She was a grower for Wacker Siltronic for 22 years.

Survivors include her sons, A.J. Waters IV, Jacob A. Waters and Chet Khut; mother, Shirley Rieper; sisters, Shirley Robertson and Sharon Douglas; and one grandchild.

Disposition was by cremation. The family suggests remembrances to N.A.S.H. Research in care of the American Liver Foundation, Cedar Grove, NJ 07009. Arrangements are by Little Chapel of the Chimes.

The family of a beloved Portland woman has invited the public to a poetry celebration in her honor.

Lois Marie Lewis has been battling cancer.

She is an exceptional poet and storyteller who has performed in the Portland area, as well as other cities and states, for several years.

She is known for giving the community so much love in her show-stopping performances, riveting stories, songs and plays.

Lois is a retired teacher with the Portland Public School District. She was also an accountant and tax consultant for 25 years. She has written and published 14 books of poems, children's stories and plays.

Now it's time for the community to pay tribute to all her hard work and success.

Please join her family in recognizing and honoring Lois Lewis, Oct. 5 at the Oregon Zoo, 4001 S.W. Canyon Rd. in the banquet room from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. For more information, call (503) 287-0921.

A community celebration is planned for Lois Marie Lewis who is battling cancer.

After-School Programs Expanded

Wyden Announces Funding to Expand Hours and Sites for PAL Youth Groups

The Portland Police Bureau has received a grant of $296,242 to expand existing Police Activities League of Greater Portland after-school programs for at-risk and low income youth.

The federal monies were announced last week by U.S. Sen. Ron Wyden, (D) Ore.

"Creating youth and family safety zones is an important step toward reducing juvenile crime and violence in the after school hours," Wyden said. "The PAL programs I have participated in over the years bring just the right kind of positive, rewarding experiences our children need."

In July, Wyden wrote the director of Communitized Oriented Policing Services, urging him to approve funding for Portland's PAL programs under the Justice Based After-School (JBAS) program with the goal of fostering educational, recreational and social development of youth during after-school hours.

The grant will be used by the Portland Police Bureau to expand existing PAL activities in three distinct ways.

The funds will expand the hours of operation for the existing PAL Youth Center, introduce after-school programming to 16 additional sites through a targeted effort called PAL Plus (Play and Learning Under Supervision), and expand activities/field trip opportunities for all of the city's PAL sites through enhancements in staffing and transportation.

Programs at the Pal Youth Center will be expanded through officer overtime, the addition of recreation and educational programs, and increased transportation resources.

JBAS is a preventative program designed to provide the tools and resources necessary to improve the quality and quantity of after-school program to establish models that can become training and technical assistance resources for other law enforcement agencies wishing to implement after-school programs.

The after-school program also funds the development of a youth-based curriculum, which will help police departments establish effective after-school programs.

Voice of God Ministry Offers Free Financial Assistance

The Voice of God Ministry, a seven year old publicly supported, non-denominational, non-profit 501 C-3 corporation as defined by the IRS, is actively reaching out to help people in physical, financial, and spiritual need across the country.

Now in its seventh year, the ministry has reached out to thousands of people by providing financial assistance and prayer, and through its television program "The Greatest Gift". The board of The Voice of God Ministry meets to review requests and after prayer, when appropriate, the ministry donates funds or services to needy recipients.

Individuals should write to The Voice of God Ministry at P.O. Box 971501, Boca Raton, FL 33497.

The Board requires each letter to include the following:

1. Describe specifically your need for help; if financial, state the product, service or help that you are requesting including the names of service providers (i.e. doctors, landlord, banks, pharmacies, auto repair shops, etc...)

2. Confirm you do not have the financial resources to meet this need by any other means and swear that your request and need is true.

3. Include your name, address, and phone number.

The deadline for requested help is Dec. 15. The ministry still has ample funds for this calendar year to help needy people.

Conference Brings Love, Logic and Philosophy to Portland

Forget Ward and June Cleaver. Move over Mr. Kotter. Faced with a growing number of challenges, from apathy and anger to peer pressure and child violence, today's parents and teachers need new and effective ways to reach children.

"In a recent survey of 1,000

America adults, we found that three-fourths believe children today face decisions with more dangerous consequences than ever before," says Jim Fay, co-founder of the Love and Logic Institute.

"However, today's parents are struggling to find a consistent approach to offering discipline and structure. The Love and Logic philosophy increases a child's chances to succeed in life by consistently offering him or her the right opportunities to fail - as well succeed at home and in the classroom."

On Oct 12, Jim Fay will be presenting a seminar on The Under-achieving and Apathetic Youngster at the Portland Conference Center. During the six-hour session, attendees will have a chance to learn why traditional strategies like threats, punishments, and rewards don't work with today's children.

Hallelujah Family Fun

New Beginnings Christian Center is providing the kids in our community an extraordinary alternative to trick or treating - the 9th annual Hallelujah Carnival.

This is the biggest carnival for kids in the city and features carnival thrill rides plus carnival games with 50,000 candy prizes. It also provides a safe environment for the several thousand in attendance and no costumes are needed.

We offer an "unlimited play" ticket for just $3.00 person. This is unbelievably low when you consider a single ride can cost $2.50 per ride. Plus, with each ticket purchased you are automatically entered into a drawing for terrific prizes like bicycles and electronic games.

The Hallelujah Carnival also open from 4 p.m. - 9 p.m. The Fun Factory starts at 7 p.m. The carnival is held at New Beginnings Christian Center, 7600 NE Gilsan St., Portland, Oregon. Call 256-6050 for more information or visit our website at newbeginnings.org.

Check Your Closets

Salvation Army Kicks Off the Coats For Kids

The Salvation Army has kicked off its 16th annual Coats for Kids campaign and asks you to look in your home closets to see if you have any winter coats your family has outgrown. If so, take them to Salvation Army Coats for Kids participating dry cleaners. Just look for the red "happy heart" coat in the window.

More than 40 Portland-Vancouver area dry cleaners have teamed up with The Salvation Army for the month of October to collect and clean used winter coats. In turn, The Army will distribute them to families in need throughout the community.

"Every year there are families in our community who can't afford to buy their children new winter coats," says Major Paul R. Seiler, divisional commander of the Cascade Division. "We want to make sure every child who needs a winter coat gets one and stays warm while playing outdoors or going to school."

Wearable coats in good condition and all colors, styles and sizes are needed for children and youth up to age 18, especially small sizes for infants and children five years and younger. If you do not have a used coat to donate, consider buying a new one and taking it to a participating Salvation Army Coats for Kids cleaner.

This year's Salvation Army Coats for Kids campaign is sponsored by KPTV Oregon's 12 and News Talk 750 KXL. For a list of participating cleaners, call The Salvation Army at 234-0825.

Correction: Helping Hands Development Center Cost Monthly

The cost for enrollment in the Helping Hands Development Center, a day care program at Portland's Emmanuel Temple Church, is $250 a month for part-time students and $350 a month for full-time students and includes transportation services.

We regret that incorrect figures were used in our recent story "Helping Hands Gives Area Kids a Boost."
