Portland's top jazz divas, Lily Wilde, Shirley Nanette and Shira, will perform in "Sing, Sing, Sing," an Oregon Symphony Bank of America Pops Concert with Resident Conductor Norman Leyden and his 18-piece Big Band featuring the swing music of Benny Goodman, Glenn Miller and Tommy Dorsey Feb. 24 through 26 at the Arlene Schnitzer Concert Hall. Leyden's Big Band is showcased annually by the Oregon Symphony. The orchestra does not perform. Media support is provided by New Talk 750 KXL, KPTV-Oregon's 12 and Media America. Oregon Symphony Pops concerts are sponsored by Bank of America.

Shirley Nanette

Wilde, who critics call one of Portland's most respected rhythm and blues singers, is also famous for her 13-piece "Jumpin' Jubilee Orchestra," which performs regularly at the Viscount and Crystal Ballrooms. The band combines the drive and swing of jump-blues with jazz solos and, according to Willamette Week, "re-creates not only the sound, but the scratchy, rich feel of America's analog Golden Age." Nanette and Shira, both Portland favorites, regularly perform for major musical events, including ArtQuake, The Mt. Hood Jazz Festival and the Portland Rose Festival. Nanette will perform "Ain't Misbehavin'," "And the Angels Sing," "Blues in the Night," "Ellington Medley" and "S Wonderful." Shira will perform "Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy," "Deep Purple," "Johnny Mercer Medley," "Lock Lomond" and
