of "Gone With the Wind." Adolph Hitler is invading Poland, and Brooklyn-bred Joe Farkas is making inroads at the Dixie Bedding Company. But the big news in the extended Freitag family – Adolph, Reba, Boo, Lala, and Sunny – is who's taking who to Ballyhoo, the social event of the season.

A witty romantic comedy with serious undertones of race and prejudice, this Tony Award winner by the author of "Driving Miss Daisy" is one you won't soon forget. Previews of this play will be at the Portland Actors Conservatory, located at 1436 SW Montgomery St. Call 503/274-1717.

29th Street Writers Sunday, March 4

On Sunday, March 4, at 7 p.m., members of the 29th Street Writers will be at Subud House, located at 3185 NE. Regents Dr., reading from their work.

The 29th Street Writers began 13 years ago and has recently added two new members. The 29th Street Writers are a Portland literary institution. Some write poetry, some write prose and all are exciting to listen to and provide a stimulating evening of cerebral entertainment. Call Ila Suzanne at 503/777-0618.

March Pledge Drive

Sunday, March 4

"Couples" – a dynamic window into the relationship lives of sixteen people launches the March Pledge Drive on the stations of Oregon Public Broadcasting, March 4, from 2 p.m. – 6 p.m.

The five part series explores the conflict and connections of eight couples during an intensive workshop facilitated by Drs. Bennet Wong and Jock McKeen.

Sunday Jazz at the Old Church Sundays on March 4, 11, 18

Every Sunday, the Old Church Concert Hall, located at 1422 SW. 11th will be having their Jazz Series offering artistic jazz in an elegant setting with food, wine and beer available before and during the performance.

Proceeds benefit the restoration of The Old Church's stained glass window, "Consider the Lilies" by the Povey Brothers Studio, circa 1892. For more info., call Sandy Stallcup at 503/636-0198 or visit their website at www.oldchurch.org.
