The Nissan Z is back. Nissan retired the racy sports car in 1996, a carryover from the now-defunct Datsun sports car, which was part of the Nissan family. It caused great disappointment among sports car enthusiasts who loved the power and personality of the Z. Nissan teased us with a concept version just to see if we really wanted the return of the Z. Response was tremendous and in 1999 Nissan announced that it will, once again, build the Z. Look for it in the 2002 model year.
