Schools Upgrade for Earthquake Dangers

In response to a recent news release by the Oregon Department of Geology and Mineral Industries stating that the Portland Hills Fault is active and capable of generating a large earthquake, Portland Public Schools released a report on the status of district schools that may be on or near the fault line.

"The district has been taking action for the past several years to upgrade our schools to better withstand an earthquake," said Facilities and Asset Management Director Pam Brown. Since 1996, Portland Public Schools has spent more than $60 million from bond funds for seismic upgrades. The upgrades, which are designed to provide safe exiting for all occupants in completed in 2003.

"Our schools also have been holding earthquake drills for the last three years," said schools, are scheduled to be Deputy Superintendent Pat Burk. "The safety of our students and staff is our top priority." For more information, call Brown at 503-916-3403.
