By MATTHEW JORDAN SMITH
St. Martin's Press; 2001

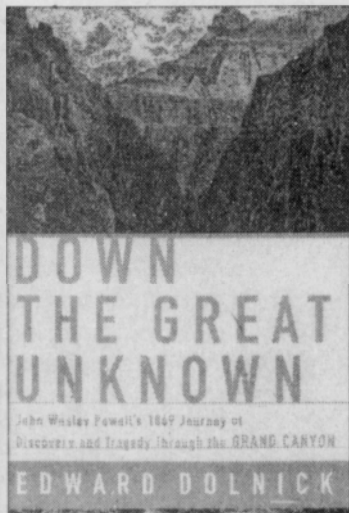

Matthew Jordan Smith is one of the most prominent photographers of celebrities in entertainment today. He has shot more than 50 magazine covers and his work has appeared in a diverse group of publications. Now, with "Sepia Dreams," Matthew Jordan Smith is taking the next step. Tapping his deep client list, Smith set out to create a book that would mesh his photography with the words and lessons of some of his top clients. The culmination of two years of exhaustive photo-shoots and personal interviews, "Sepia Dreams," is a collection of 50 photographs accompanied by inspirational interviews with African-American celebrities speaking candidly about the drive, determination and spiritual vision that has made them successful.

Adventure Seeking at the Grand Canyon

By EDWARD DOLNICK
Harper Collins; 2001

This year marks the 100th anniversary of the death of John Wesley Powell, the indomitable one-armed Civil War hero and passionate geologist who risked his life to put this once fabled marvel firmly on the map.

A former chief science writer at the "Boston Globe" and veteran of four Grand Canyon river trips, Edward Dolnick tells the first complete, objective story of Powell's astounding expedition in "Down the Great Unknown: John Wesley Powell's 1969 Journey of Discovery and Tragedy Through the Grand Canyon." Delving into the rarely examined journals and diaries of Powell and his ragtag crew, Dolnick presents a detailed and gripping "you are there" account of 99 days, 1,000 miles, and nearly 500 ferocious rapids through uncharted waters to a mysterious chasm of vast "marble" rock.

"Flesh and Blood"

"Flesh and Blood" is a play currently showing at the Newmark Theatre until Nov. 18 that tells the story of one Greek immigrant family's journey through the American social experience in the late 60s, 70s, 80s and 90s.
