BAHA MEN KEEP THE PARTY MUSIC GOING

The Baha Men announce the release of their anxiously awaited follow-up to 2000's hit album "Who Let The Dogs Out," which sold over 5 million copies and launched the biggest single of the year. "Move It Like This," will be in stores March 26.

Armed with new songs combining the Junkanoo rhythms of their homeland with pop, reggae, rap and R&B, the Baha Men once again look to bring their unique sound to the airwaves and beyond.

The Baha Men made pop music history with their infectious single, "Who Let The Dogs Out," that became the unofficial sports anthem for nearly every major sporting event in 2000 and 2001. After nearly 20 years of recording albums and non-stop touring, the band became "overnight sensations," winning a Grammy Award, two Billboard Awards, and two Kid's Choice Awards. They also toured with 'NSYNC and 98 De-

The Baha Men's style of music called junkanoo, is derived from a street festival in the Bahamas that happens after Christmas. The rhythmic sounds are played on goat-skin drums, horns, whistles, and bells.

grees and countless television shows. Founding member Isaiah Taylor muses, "It has truly been an amazing couple of years for us and we are so proud to be the ones who finally put the Bahamas on the musical map."
