High Crimes

High-powered female defense attorney Claire Chapman is up against one of the toughest cases of her career. She is defending her husband, Tom, who has been charged by the U.S. military with deserting and mass murder in Central America. As Claire gets more involved in the case, she uncovers evidence that makes her question her place as a lawyer and a wife. (Genre: adaptation, courtroom; Rating: PG-13; Running time: 105 mins.)

Claire (Ashley Judd) and Grimes (Morgan Freeman) react to a surprising development during the trial of her husband in "High Crimes."

The Rookie

When a shoulder injury ended his minor league pitching career twelve years ago, Jim Morris resorted to the next best thing: coaching. But Jim's team, knowing their coach is a great ball player, makes a deal with him: if they win the district championship, they want Jim to try out for a major-league organization. Going from worst to first, the team makes it to state, and Jim is forced to live up to his end of the deal. While there prove to be a lot of pitches to be thrown before he makes it off the mound, big-league dreams are revived, and there's no telling where he could go. (Genre: biopic, sports, comedy; Rating: G; Running time: 86 mins.)

Morris (Dennis Quaid) accepts the game ball and congratulations on winning the district championship from his shortstop, Joaquin Campos (Jay Hernandez) in "The Rookie."
