Ewing Retires After 17 Years in NBA

(AP)—Saying it's time for him to move on, Patrick Ewing has announced his retirement as an NBA player.

Ewing spent most of his career in New York and says it was a great ride in, what he called, the greatest city in the world.

The former president and CEO of Madison Square Garden, Dave Checketts, introduced Ewing at today's news conference by calling him the greatest New York Knick.

Ewing was drafted out of Georgetown in 1985 and won the league's rookie of the year award his first pro year. He played for 17 seasons and was named to eleven NBA All-Star teams. He was named one of the NBA's 50 greatest players last decade, although he never won an NBA champion-

Ewing says the Washington Wizards have offered him a job as an assistant coach, where he'll be working with Michael Jordan.

PSU Wins Invitational, Face Ducks Next

"Anytime you win, it's a great win!" Those were the words of Head Coach Tim Walsh as his Vikings eked out a 23-20 overtime win against North Carolina A&T in the Vanport Invitational at PGE Park.

The decisive play was a 12-yard touchdown pass from Justin Wood to Saleem Muhammad on third down and eight. The Vikings were trailing 20-17 after an 18-yard Pat Simcox field goal in NCAT's first overtime possession. Portland State scrambled back from a 14-0 first-half deficit to win its sixth straight game and seventh in a row at PGE Park. The Vikings will next play the Oregon Ducks Saturday.
