

Martin Luther King Jr. Knowledge Poll

'Are you kidding? Of course I know who he is. It is too bad we only formally recognize him once a year. He was a great man and a great preacher. There is a street nearby named after him.'

—Able Onkerdonk

'He was a civil rights leader and was assassinated for standing up against racism. He was a person who sought out non-violent solutions to conflict. He opposed Malcom X.'

—Terry Coughran

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS.

AUTHORITY OF AGENTS.

1. The Authority of an Express Agent of this Company is defined as follows: To receive and receipt for Money, Valuables, and Merchandise to be forwarded; to receive Notes, Drafts, etc., for collection, and to receive money to procure Bills of Exchange or Certificates of Deposit, and for the purchase of Goods. An Agent is not authorized to draw any Check or Bill of Exchange, to receive on Deposit any Money or Valuables, nor to undertake any transaction in the Company's name that does not legitimately pertain to the Express and Forwarding Business.

2. Agents and employes are positively prohibited from accepting or undertaking to execute in the name of the Company, and as a part of its business, and its risk, any order whatsoever for the purchase or sale or custody of Mining or other Stocks, unless specially authorized in writing. Persons desiring to transact such business can communicate directly with any Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Bank, sealing their enclosures, which must be way-billed at their declared value.

3. No agent or employe is permitted, but, on the contrary all are positively prohibited from contracting any debts, making or accepting drafts, making notes, due-bills, or other money obligations or accounts in the name of or for account of the Company except by special authority.

4. Agents are not allowed to purchase supplies on Company's account until authority has been asked and granted.

5. Any service, other than the authorized business of the Company, must be declined, and the Company must not be used for questionable purposes.

Business Confidential.

6. The business of the Company, and the transactions of its customers must be strictly confidential; and books, bills, etc., are not open for public inspection.

7. Information concerning the amount of money received or forwarded or in relation to any matter of business is confidential.

EMPLOYÉS.

8. The personal conduct and deportment of employes must be such as to reflect no discredit on themselves or the Company, and in their business intercourse with each other they must not indulge in unbecoming language.

9. The most polite and gentlemanly treatment of all customers, however insignificant their business, is insisted upon. Proper respect must be shown to all—let them be men, women or children, rich or poor, white or black—it must not be forgotten that the Company is dependent on these same people for its business.

10. Misconduct on the part of an employe, coming under the notice of another, must be reported to the General or Division Superintendent, Route Agent or Agent.

11. An employe who may become cognizant of default in duty by another employe, and fails to report same to the Superintendent of his Division, becomes equally censurable with the defaulter, and when known will be dealt with accordingly.

12. Clerks, drivers, or other employes are subject to the agent at the office where employed, or where their duties require them to be.

13. For good cause, agents may suspend employes from duty, reporting the facts to the General or Division Superintendent.

14. Messengers must not be sent off their regular routes by agents, except for good reasons, which must be reported to the Division Superintendent.

15. While messengers are absent from cars or coaches, for meals, etc., at a station, the agent must remain with the car or coach, or substitute a suitable person.

16. Employes exclusively engaged in the Company's business will not absent themselves without permission from the Superintendent of their Division, or from the Agent of the Office where they may be engaged.

17. When detained from business by sickness or other cause, employes must inform Superintendent or Office where employed, at once, giving reasons for their absence.

18. All employes whose duties require them to handle money or valuables and others, when deemed advisable,

Instruction #9

"The most polite and gentlemanly treatment of all customers, however insignificant their business, is insisted upon. Proper respect must be shown to all—let them be men, women or children, rich or poor, white or black."
