Relocation

VI the Portland way, very caring and compassionate with the community involved," said Shelly Marchesi, communication director for the housing authority.

"There's a tremendous amount of learning from the last 10 years. We have the benefit of the experience of other Hope VI projects."

According to Perez from Sisters in Action, 40,000 public housing units have been lost nationally because of Hope VI "improvements."

"Part of our concern around this issue is the larger trend that's happening in the way Hope VI grants are used to dismantle public housing around the community. Every time a city gets a Hope VI grant, thousands of families are displaced," Perez said. "Between gentrification and relocation, you're talking about a mass displacement of low-income people out of the city."
