

Culture at IFCC

The Interstate Firehouse Cultural Center on North Interstate Avenue announces two exciting exhibitions in June.

"Two Artists, Two Cultures, One Love" is a series of individual and collaborative works by Baba Wague Diakite and Ronna Neuenschwander. The exhibit is a reflection of a long-term partnership in life and art. Included in the art show is a video by filmmaker Jim Blashfield set to Wague's storytelling of an African tale.

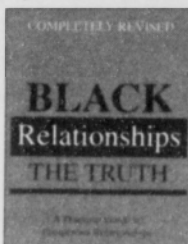

On Last Thursday, June 24, following an Artist's Talk, the film "Don't Paint Lizards on My House" will close the evening's celebration of cultural diversity.

In the Entry Gallery, IFCC introduces TaaevaOhtseve'hatse, a northern Cheyenne artist whose pen and ink drawings and watercolors honor Native Americans, Sitting Bull, Rushing Bear and Two Moons, among others.

THE TRUTH Examines Relationships

"Black Relationships: The Truth" examines for the first time in any book an honest and comprehensive look at the attitudes and practices of black men and women in relationships with helpful hints for achieving economic security.

Attime when the African-American community may be looking for new direction, author Keith Lane has some ideas for love and economic security. The book aims to be a practical guide to prosperous relationships, incorporating creative communication and more.

"The Truth" is available at Borders Books & Music.
