Stevie Wonder Named Champion for Justice

CME Church cities his racial advocacy

Legendary singer Stevie Wonder has been named a champion for justice, human concerns and racial harmony.

The Christian Methodist Episcopal Church has presented the Grammy and Oscar award-winning recording artist and producer with the CME Human Concerns Award because of his legacy of humanitarian efforts and his outstanding service as a civil rights advocate, entrepreneur and Christian leader.

During a recent ceremony, CME Bishop Henry Williamson Sr. applauded Wonder and other leaders for combining their efforts with Coretta Scott King which led to the

Dear Deanna!

11 years. She wouldn't wear lingerie and the lights had to be off when being intimate. I expressed my concerns on these matters. Later in the marriage she quit work because I was taking good care of the household. There was still no intimacy, so I had an affair with a female friend. I told my wife about this but then I saw her car at a man's house. She denied being there at first but later she said they only sat and talked on the sofa. Am I a fool or what? --Tyrone; On-Line Reader

Dear Tyrone:

You're not a fool, but your wife is a trickster. Nine times out of ten when your woman who claims to love you skips out on her womanly duties, she's cheating. You've been deprived, you've been used and you've been lied to. Two wrongs don't make a right and you burned each other with the cheating. Make a decision and decide to be together, have an open relationship or call it quits and keep it moving.

Dear Deanna!

I'm 24-years old with a criminal record for forgery, burglary and a few other things. I've been trying really hard to get a job. I've applied for many minimum wage jobs. I've gone through resume and interview classes and still nothing. My family is giving me a hard time and they think I'm not trying hard enough. They don't understand. I'm on probation and there's so much pressure to make illegal money. I need some help or positive advice. -- K.L.C.; Los Angeles

Dear K.L.C:

With the chips falling around you, now is the time to become an honest entrepreneur. When all else fails, find jobs such as cutting grass, washing cars or towing away junk. You would be surprised that with a little word-of-mouth advertising and family and friends you can make money and start a business doing odd jobs. But be prepared to work hard and deal with a few disappointments but if you stick with it, you'll be successful.

Dear Deanna:

I would like your opinion on a marriage where one spouse constantly degrades another spouse verbally while not doing what the Word says they should do as head of the household. Shouldn't they both be accountable to God's Word at all times and not just when they claim to be a Christian? If the unhappy one has suggested and tried prayer or counseling is it their fault if they divorce to pursue growth? Anonymous; On-Line Reader

Dear Anonymous:

Both of you need to stop playing around and juggling the Word to make it suit your interpretation. Lock it down with some hardcore biblical facts. The only reason for divorce given by the Lord is fornication and any other cause is without biblical authority. Talk to your spouse and get to the root of the problem and fix things together. God put you together as one and also provides you with the wisdom and tools to work, resolve and fix the issues.
