Second Wife Divorces Prince

Unpublicized union ends after five years

Manuela Testolini Nelson, soon to be the woman formerly known as Mrs. Prince, has filed for divorce from the pop superstar, Prince's attorney confirmed. Patrick Cousins, his general counsel, said that the case was pending.

The case was filed May 24, and a court administrator told the AP the case was sealed on July 11.

Prince, full name Prince Rogers Nelson, and Testolini, a former employee at the star's Paisley Park charitable foundation, were married for five years.

Prince, 48, has rarely spoken publicly about his marriage to Testolini, 29. They tied the knot in 2001 in a ceremony in Hawaii, with Testolini taking the 'Purple Rain' singer's little know last name.

It is Prince's second marriage. He was previously married to backup singer and dancer Mayte Garcia. The pair wed on Valentine's Day in 1996 and had a son who was born with Pfeiffer syndrome, a rare skull disease. He tragically died shortly after being born.

Prince and Garcia's union was eventually annulled in 1998.

Aussie Bluegrass Artist Attracts Wide Audience

Award-winning blues singer/guitarist Fiona Boyes will perform two shows in Portland on Tuesday, Aug. 8 at Alberta Street Pub, 1036 N.E. Alberta St. and Wednesday, Aug. 9 at Music Millennium, 801 N.W. 23rd Ave.

Boyes won the Blues Foundation's 2003 International Blues challenge, becoming the first Australian and the first woman to win the acoustic division of this prestigious event.

She has toured the U.S., performing at the Blues Hall of Fame Induction Ceremony, the Chicago Blues Festival, and Portland's Waterfront Blues Festival. Boyes has also toured her native Australia with some of Blues' most legendary artists, including Alvin Youngblood Hart, and Howlin'

Wolf guitarist Hubert Sumlin.

Sumlin said of Fiona, "She's got it, I'm tellin' you... you know what I'm talkin' about. I've played with them all, and she's got it."

Boyes' new album, Lucky 13, comes out Aug. 8, featuring electric blues, swing, rockabilly, and every style of blues in between, with special guests including Marcia Ball and "Steady Rollin'" Bob Margolin.

The Alberta Street Pub performance begins at 8 p.m., and the Music Millennium performance begins at 6 p.m.

Soul Singer to open B.B. King celebration

Portland's leading soul chanteuse Liv Warfield will perform at legendary electric guitarist B.B. King's 80th Birthday Celebration Concert, Monday, Aug. 7 at McMenamins Historic Edgefield Manor in Troutdale.

King, a 14-time Grammy winner and reigning king of the blues, hails as one of the most influential electric guitarists of the 20th century. As a goodwill ambassador and innovative bluesman, King continues to tour extensively worldwide.

Warfield's captivating rock and soul performances capture the emotional standard and artistic integrity of influences Etta James, Patti LaBelle and Tina Turner. Her debut album "Embrace Me," is scheduled for a Sept. 9, 2006 release date. Visit www.livmymusic.com for more information, and stay tuned for Warfield's new website, launching this month.

Tickets can be purchased at Ticketmaster outlets and at the Crystal Ballroom box office. Reserved seats run $65.00 and general admission tickets are available for $37.50. Gates open at 5 p.m. and the show begins at 6:30 p.m.

'Men of Honor' Diver Dies at 75

Navel hero immortalized in Hollywood film

(AP)—Carl M. Brashear, a naval hero who was immortalized in a Hollywood film, died July 25 at age 75. Brashear was the first black U.S. Navy diver, portrayed by Cuba Gooding Jr. in the 2000 film "Men of Honor."

Brashear, a native of Sonora, Ky., died at the Naval Medical Center Portsmouth of respiratory and heart failure, the medical center said.

Brashear retired from the Navy in 1979 after more than 30 years of service. He was the first Navy diver to be restored to full active duty as an amputee, the result of a leg injury he sustained during a salvage operation.

In 1966, Brashear was tasked with recovering a hydrogen bomb that dropped into waters off Spain when two U.S. Air Force planes collided.

During the mission, Brashear was struck below his left knee by a pipe that the crew was using to hoist the bomb out of the water. Brashear was airlifted to a naval hospital where the bottom of his left leg was amputated to avoid gangrene. It later was replaced with a prosthetic leg.

The Navy was ready to retire Brashear from active duty, but he soon began a grueling training program that included diving, master diver in 1970.

Brashear faced an uphill battle when he joined the Navy in 1948 at the age of 17, not long after the U.S. military desegregated.

"I went to the Army office, and they weren't too friendly," Brashear said in 2002. "But the Navy recruiter was a lot nicer. Looking back, I was placed in my calling."

Brashear quickly decided after boot camp that he wanted to become a deep-sea diver.

"Growing up on a farm in Kentucky, I always dreamed of doing something challenging," he said. "When I saw the divers for the first time, I knew it was just what I wanted."

In 1954, he was accepted and graduated from the diving program, despite daily battles with discrimination.

"Hate notes were left on my bunk," he said. "They didn't want me to make it through the program."

He went on to train for advanced diving programs before his 1966 incident.

Brashear married childhood friend Junetta Wilcox in 1952 and had four children — Shazanta, DaWayne, Phillip and Patrick — before their divorce in 1978. He later married Hattie R. Elam and Jeanette A. Brundage.
