'Momix' Opens White Bird Series

The White Bird Dance series launches its ninth season with Momix, the internationally renowned dance company that pushes movement beyond the limits of the human body, on Wednesday, Oct. 25 at 7:30 p.m. at the Arlene Schnitzer Concert Hall.

Led by the brilliantly innovative Moses Pendleton, Momix is a company of dancer-illusionists who combine acrobatics, theater, dance and mime with unparalleled physical ability to create stunning fantasies that stretch the imagination.

The dancers will perform their breathtaking "Opus Cactus," a full-evening work inspired by the flora, fauna and simple magic of the American Southwest.

Tickets are $19-$43, available at the Portland Center for Performing Arts Box Office and all Ticketmaster outlets.

Bono, Oprah Fight AIDS in Africa

(AP) -- Talk show host Oprah Winfrey and humanitarian rocker Bono hit Chicago's "Magnificent Mile" on Thursday for a shopping spree to promote a new line of clothing, accessories and gadgets that will raise money to fight AIDS in Africa.

Dozens of "(Product) Red" items will go on sale in the coming weeks by Gap Inc., Apple Computer Inc., Motorola Inc., Converse Inc. and Emporio Armani.

Portions of the product sales will go to The Global Fund, an organization that fights AIDS, tuberculosis and malaria.

"Some people won't put on marching boots, so we've got to get to people where they are at, and they're in the shopping malls," Bono said in a phone interview. "Now you're buying jeans and T-shirts, and you're paying for 10 women in Africa to get medication for their children with HIV."

The two also stopped at Armani and Motorola stores.

"Shop 'till it stops," said Bono as he walked out of the Apple store clutching bulging shopping bags.
