with the league," says Mundy. "It helps everybody."

The league has played a historical role in Portland. Mundy believes there is no African American person in Portland that hasn't been positively impacted with the league in some way.

"People of color have had doors opened to them because of the urban league," he says.

Mundy hopes to leave the league in a better state than he found it, and also leave it in the hands of a passionate and compassionate individual who will keep the organization focused on making productive members of society.

"This is the most gratifying job I have ever had," says Mundy.

"I know I leave every day directly helping individuals."

Marcus Mundy serves as president and chief executive officer of the Urban League of Portland, the city's leading civil rights and social services organization.

Energy Trust Helps Oregon Businesses Positively Impact the Bottom Line

Rondell Sango, General Manager of the NE Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard Burgerville, puts a new pre-rinse sprayer to work.

Burgerville took advantage of incentives from Energy Trust and installed high performance pre-rinse sprayers in 19 Portland-area locations. For Burgerville, that adds up to savings of $7,600 every year. With energy costs on the rise, now is a great time to take advantage of Energy Trust incentives for your business.

Portland Public Schools celebrates the legacy of Dr. King's vision

Dr. King made enormous and lasting contributions to improve the lives of millions of his fellow Americans, contributions that our school district strives to emulate every day.

Portland Public Schools will carry on that legacy by reaching out to our community partners in the spirit of service to forge a future in which everyone is proud of our diversity and united in our reverence for freedom, justice, and equality.
