Fawcett Tests Cancer-Free

Farah Fawcett got an unbeatable gift for her 60th birthday: a clean bill of health. The actress, who revealed in October that she was fighting cancer, learned this week that she is cancer-free, spokesman Mike Pingel said Friday.

Dr. Gary Gitnick, Farah Fawcett

Fawcett's lead physician at the University of California, Los Angeles, said the actress "has had a full and complete response to treatment."

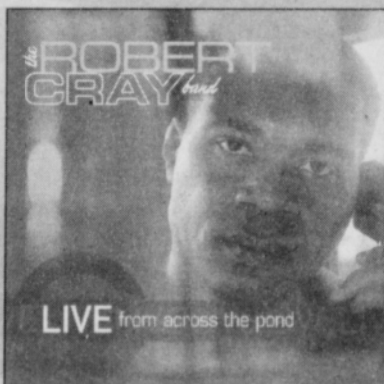

"Her prognosis is excellent," he said.

The former "Charlie's Angel" star said she was "deeply grateful" to her doctors and her family and friends "who have sustained me as I battled this terrible disease."

"This is an extraordinarily happy day for me and my family," she said in a statement. "I hope that my news might offer some level of inspiration to others who unfortunately must continue to fight the disease."

NOZZLE RECORDS

The Robert Cray band is famous for touring more than six months out of the year, yet in its 30-year career, there has never been a live album - until the release of Live From Across The Pond, that is. The two-CD live set was recorded over the course of seven shows in May 2006 at London's Royal Albert Hall while Cray was on tour with Eric Clapton.
