

Etched into Our Memory

9-11
photojournalism
exhibits open Friday

By now, the story of Sept. 11, 2001 has been etched into our collective memory, but few have seen New York from the perspective of Magnum photographers.

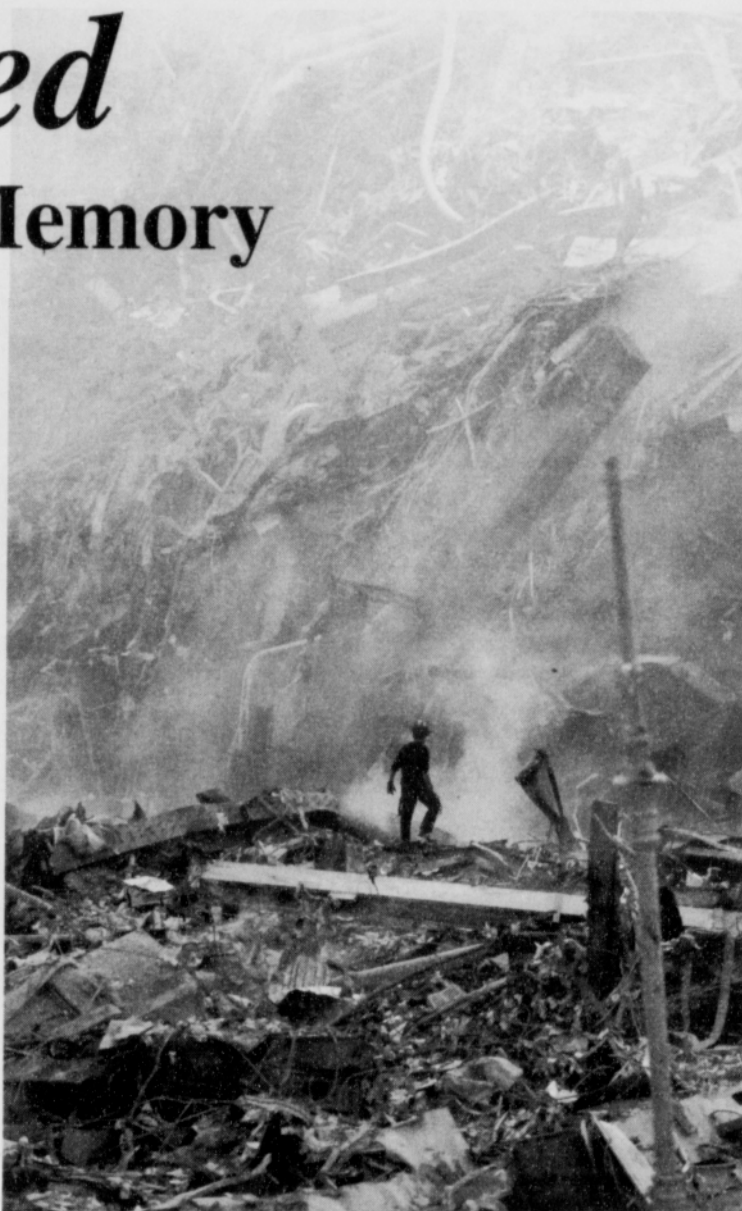

Eleven members of the legendary photo agency immediately dispersed from their monthly meeting in New York as the events unfolded to document the incomprehensible.

"New York, Sept. 11" consists of 37 color and black and white photographs that are by turns haunting, surreal and breathtaking. The tour opens Friday, March 2 and runs through May 26 at the Oregon Historical Society.

Organized by International Arts & Artists, Washington, D.C., the tour is one two photo exhibits the museum is featuring on the 9-11 attack during the next several weeks.

Photographer Nathan Lyons, known for his honest and often questioning depictions of American culture, is featured in the other tour, creating his own poignant sequence of images in response to the events of Sept. 11.

City and small towns, Lyons has captured the extreme and often confusing variety of responses manifested by ordinary Americans to create After 9/11: This exhibition was organized by the George Eastman House International Museum of Photography and Film, and will be on display Friday, March 2 though May 19.

Museum hours are Monday-Saturday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

'After 9/11' by Nathan Lyons is part of the collection of two photo exhibits on the 9-11 disaster, opening Friday at the Oregon Historical Society.
