

The high-energy music of African marimba is coming to northeast Portland's Evangel Baptist Church.

African Marimba Concert

Sixty students of local musician MyLinda King will bring high-energy marimba music from Zimbabwe, Botswana and South Africa to Portland during a special concert on Saturday, April 21 from 12:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. at Evangel Baptist Church, 2830 N.E. Flanders St.

Admission is free, but donations will be accepted to buy marimbas for Buckman Elementary students. All ages are welcome.

For more info, call MyLinda King at 503-233-4372 or email marimba@teleport.com.

Ice Cube and Nia Back Together

"Are We Done Yet?" the sequel to 2005's hit comedy "Are We There Yet?" picks up the quartet when they move from the big city to the suburbs for an idyllic life. A house renovation leads to chaos, particularly when the contractor who clashes with Nick (Ice Cube) bonds with his wife (Nia Long) and the two kids (Philip Bolden and Aleisha Allen). The release by Columbia Pictures hits theaters this week.

Steeped in Culture, Humor

Portland's Profile Theatre presents "The Sisters Rosensweig," a play steeped in Jewish culture and humor, now playing through April 22 at Theater! Theater! 3430 S.E. Belmont St.

Celebrated playwright Wendy Wasserstein's "Sisters" are on a search for love, self-definition and fulfillment, whether it's with a gay man, as a Jewish woman in a white Anglo-Saxon protestant world, or by seeking out a pair of designer heels. The play is directed by Profile Theatre's Jane Unger and features Karla Mason, Amanda Soden and television and stage actress Barbara Kerr.

Venue Grows for Irish Singer

Irish singer and songwriter Damien Rice will perform April 26 at 8 p.m. at the Rose Quarter after his scheduled show at the Roseland Theater sold out. All tickets sold for the Roseland will be honored.

Rice's powerful voice was discovered by many when he released his first single "The Blower's Daughter," an instant Top 20 hit in the fall of 2001. He released an album "O" in the United States in 2003 and recorded his second album "9" last year.
