Bob and Crew at Children's Museum

Can We Build It? Yes We Can! Grab your hard hats: Bob the Builder and his Can-Do Crew invite aspiring builders and their families to help get the job done, as the first-ever, hands-on Bob the Builder-Project: Build It traveling museum exhibit visits the Portland Children's Museum.

The 2,000 square-foot, multimedia exhibit replicate elements from Bob the Builder's TV series world, inviting exploration and inspiring teamwork for children and families.

"Important themes like working together and environmental conservation are weaved throughout this interactive exhibit," said Portland Children's Museum Executive Director Sarah Orleans. "We couldn't do it without sponsors Neil Kelly and the Energy Trust of Oregon. They wanted to support us in bringing a message of conservation to our kids."

The exhibit invites families to spend time with Bob the Builder, Wendy and the rest of the Can-Do Crew. Children can practice their own fixing with kid-smart activities that build up their can-do attitudes.

The tasks demonstrate the power of positive-thinking, problem-solving, teamwork and follow-through. Most importantly, from start to finish, the Bob the Builder team always shows that the fun is in getting it done!

◀ The Bob the Builder action figure is part of a traveling museum exhibit with hands on fun for kids. The multimedia show is currently taking place at the Portland's Children's Museum.

The Northwest Film Center this month presents a series of films speaking to global concerns and human rights.

While cinema can provide entertainment and escape, for many committed filmmakers and viewers it is a vital medium of information and a powerful tool for social change. The works presented in Global Concern will broaden understanding and stimulate involvement as they reveal the hardship, courage, and commitment of those who are focused on the many challenges confronting humanity.
