Healing Power of Unity Moves Community

African American Health Coalition Founder Corliss McKeever (second from right) and members of the community stand together between the branches of a piece called "One Tree Many Branches." Designed to represent the healing power of unity when individuals are willing to graft themselves together as a force to move their communities forward, this wonderful installation was created by international guest artist professor Cheikh Ndiaye of Senegal and displayed Saturday at the AAHC Wellness Village healthcare event at the Blazers Boys and Girls Club.

Interstate Firehouse Celebrates 25 Years

The IFCC Gallery will feature a full 25-year Scrapbook Timeline Exhibit, as well as original art by local artists. And what homecoming would be complete without the crowning of the Homecoming King and Queen. Prizes will be awarded for best 80s costume, so everyone is invited to dig out their leg warmers and designer sneakers. Special guests include IFCC founder Charles Jordan, and Sue Goodson Featherly, IFCC's original executive director, among others. Tickets are $15 and available through PDX Tickets at 503-205-0715 or at ifccarts.org.

The IFCC is a multidisciplinary arts center that awakens cultural awareness by creating an environment for artists and audiences to explore, honor, and celebrate diversity. For more information about IFCC's history, go to ifccarts.org/about/history.

The Crazy 8s are home grown legends of funk, rock and reggae.

Crazy 8's to Perform at IFCC

The Crazy 8s ruled the road from 1983 through 1993 as home grown legends of funk, rock and reggae. Touring endlessly, they employed a grassroots approach, borne out of a series of successful indie recordings which earned respectable positions on the College Media Journal, Gavin Report, and Tower Records Pulse charts. "Law and Order" sold over 20,000 copies and featured the track "Johnny Q," which became an instant hit becoming the "Screamer of the Week" at Alternative rock powerhouse WLIR-New York. Rolling Stone named the 8s as one of "9 Bands to Watch" and locally the 8s had two songs, "Touchy Situation" and "Luv'll Find You" go Top 20 at Z100 while being consistently featured on KINK radio's "Local Music Spotlight" and being named to KGON's list of "The Top 920 Bands of All-Time." All the while, they performed with acts including The Clash, The Neville Brothers, The Red Hot Chili Peppers, Oingo Boingo, The Violent Femmes, UB40, The English Beat and Steel Pulse to name a few. The group will serve as the headline act for Saturday's 25th anniversary celebration for the Interstate Firehouse Cultural Center on North Interstate Avenue. Sharing the stage will be the local group Sneakin Out. No one can rock a mandolin and spoons like these guys, according to Adrienne Flagg, IFCC creative director. "Wait until until you have heard them play AC/DC's Back in Black or Van Halen's Jump, Flagg said. Also featured for the anniversary celebration with some sensational Latin grooves will be Melao De Cuba and dancers from Hurricane Tumbao. If you have caught this band at Mississippi Pizza you will know that the dance floor is packed with sexy dancing all night, Flagg said. Tickets are $15 and available through PDX Tickets at 503-205-0715.

Speak up on Transportation!

Help shape local, regional and statewide transportation funding decisions for the next four years.

Metro and the Oregon Department of Transportation invite you to comment on proposed transportation projects in the Portland metropolitan region at any one of two public meetings in October. Metro is seeking public input on the regional flexible fund allocations, and ODOT is seeking public comment on the Statewide Transportation Improvement Program.

- At these meetings you may:
- testify before elected officials and submit written comments on projects and programs eligible for regional flexible fund allocations
 - testify before ODOT officials on the Region 1 Statewide Transportation Improvement Program
 - get more information about a range of regional planning programs from roads to highways to transit and land-use planning
 - talk with technical staff
