Soul Man is the Real Deal

Sam Moore inducted into vocal hall

Sam Moore, lead singer of legendary R&B duo Sam & Dave, was inducted last week into the Vocal Group Hall of Fame in Youngstown, Ohio along with Fleetwood Mac, Queen, Journey, The Righteous Bros., Bread, The Pointer Sisters, Sly and The Family Stone and other legendary musical groups.

Moore, 73, and late partner Dave Prater were inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in 1992.

In 2006, he released the Grammy nominated "Overnight Sensational" produced by Randy Jackson and featuring a raft of his pals including Sting, Jon Bon Jovi, Wynonna Judd, and Bruce Springsteen.

The latter has called Sam "the greatest soul singer on planet Earth."

Moore has been featured in the documentary, "Only the Strong Survive," "Tape Heads," and the movie "Blues Brothers 2000," the sequel to the original "Blues Brothers" movie which was homage to Sam & Dave.

Next month, to underscore that Sam Moore is the Real Deal, Universal Home Video releases "Sam & Dave: The Original Soul Men," which features rare, vintage and previously unseen footage of the most popular duo ever to grace Atlantic or Stax Records during their heyday.

Rapper Hosts Reality Show

50 Cent has a new show on MTV, where business-savvy contestants compete for a shot at fame and a huge cash prize. But the rapper says he's not following the path of that other famous reality show hosted by Donald Trump.

"Immediately when you say a reality show that has a business spin to it, they think 'The Apprentice,' and the difference is these people don't actually want to work for me," the 32-year-old said. "They have their own business ideas that they created and they're competing for $100,000 in seed money."

"50 Cent: The Money and the Power" features 14 contestants competing to show that they are the best entrepreneurs. 50 Cent will chop down the number of contestants until the winner is crowned.

People will be seeing a lot of 50 Cent in the next few months. Besides the MTV project, he is releasing his latest album, "Before I Self Destruct," on Dec. 9. The CD includes an accompanying feature-length film with the same title.
