Versatile Mike Phillips makes Portland debut

Hiddenbeach Recording Artist Mike Phillips, a versatile and soulful jazz saxophonist who has played with Herbie Hancock, Guns & Roses, Prince, Stevie Wonder and more, will bring a new energy to Portland when he takes his signature "No genre left behind" style, to Jimmy Mak's, downtown, for a Portland debut performance on Saturday, Jan. 30 at 8 p.m.

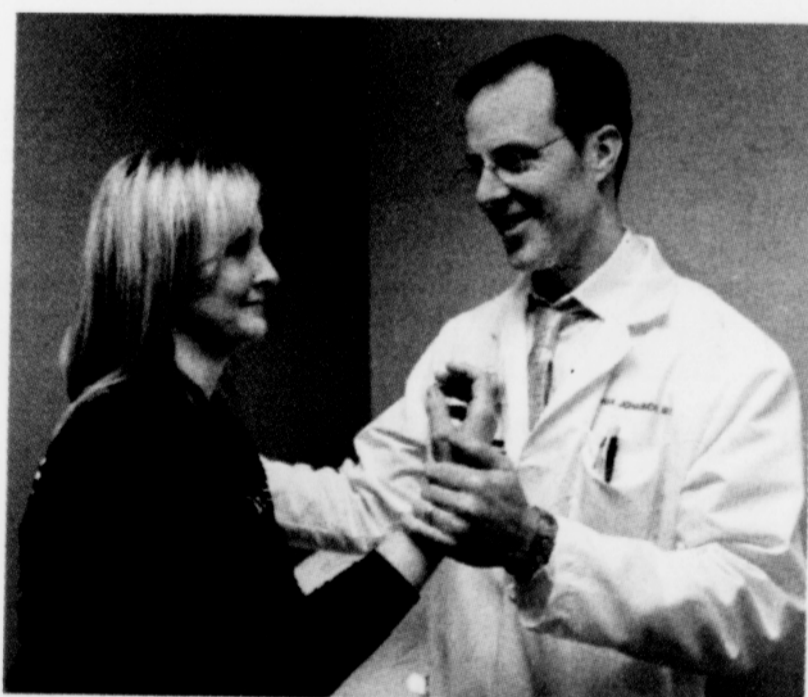

Phillips became interested in music at a young age, moving through several different instruments before settling on the saxophone. By the age of 16, he had decided to play professionally. He made an impromptu debut at Wilson's nightclub in New York City in 1993, and that led to a series of session and sideman jobs in jazz, R&B, and even rap.

Mike has a love and connection with Portland like no other city. The Mount Vernon, N.Y. native is the only musician to be endorsed by Brand Jordan, a division of Nike, and he is the newly married husband of Portland resident Karis Stoudamire.
