In My Own Words: Achieving Success in School

BY SHAKYLA MOSLEY-MILLER

As a teen I believe in being a leader and not a follower. That means going to school and getting an education, not going to school to socialize.

I work hard at what I do so that I can make something of myself. The reason why I strive for success is the fact that I have parents motivating me to do my best. I believe that if every child has some one to motivate or push them to do the best they can do, they will make something of themselves. If it wasn't for my parents I probably wouldn't be where I'm at in life.

I see how hard my dad David Miller, works with mentoring other youth about the importance of education and teaching them the motto of Responsibility Accountability Productive "R.A.P." My mom LaToya Govan has taught me how to have a good work and study ethic, and to be a respectable young adult.

With God who is the head of my life leading the way and shining his grace upon me I try to set an example by always doing and being a good person and I will continue on this path with God's love.

As an older sister I am a role model for my younger brother. Knowing that little kids look up to me, makes me feel like I'm doing something right in my life. I'm not saying that teenagers can not have fun but with today's society you have to work hard to achieve your goals and that means getting a good education.

Some of the things I do on my off time are volunteering and tutoring other students from middle school to high school. When I do stuff like that I feel like I'm helping others make something of themselves. As a student at Benson High School, I'm thinking about majoring in Health OC, which is a nursing program that Benson provides for their students as a career path.

As a role model to younger kids, I try to teach them about the pressures that are out there. For example, the peer pressure to join gangs, pressure to do and sell drugs, pressure to drop out of school, basically to do the wrong things. But I want them to know that it is other directions that they can go in; just put God first and do what your parents ask of you.

Shakyla Mosley-Miller is a perfect 4.0 grade point average student in her freshman year at Benson High School.

Training Center Hosts Events

Portland's Extended Learning Campus is celebrating Black History Month with a series of public events at the Portland Metro Workforce Training Center at Northeast 42nd Avenue and Killingsworth Street.

Each Wednesday of this month, special films and discussions are scheduled from noon to 1 p.m. in the center's auditorium in Building 2. Refreshments will be served.

A special Black History Month evening discussion will start at 5:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 24. It will include a keynote speaker, panel discussion, student essay winners, African dancers, vendors, buffet dinner, and more.

Frederick Douglass

Frederick Douglass (born Frederick Augustus Washington Bailey, (born circa 1818; died February 20, 1895) was an American abolitionist, women's suffragist, editor, orator, author, statesman and reformer. Called "The Sage of Anacostia" and "The Lion of Anacostia", Douglass is one of the most prominent figures in African American and United States history.

He was a firm believer in the equality of all people, whether black, female, Native American, or recent immigrant. He was fond of saying, "I would unite with anybody to do right and with nobody to do wrong."
