TriMet Recruits Local Leaders

Dr. T. Allen Bethel and Hakeem Olanrewaju have been appointed to the TriMet Board of Directors.

Bethel, 57, is a resident of Northeast Portland and senior pastor of Maranatha Church of God, where he has served since July 1994. He has extensive experience with mass transit and public involvement with organizations and businesses in the Portland region and plans to work to ensure transit, project development and community involvement are all closely aligned.

As part of the "Big Dig" project in Boston, Bethel served as chair of a task force charged with managing the relocation of a light rail line, public meetings and the design and build out of new stations. He is also involved in many civic activities including serving on the boards of Warner Pacific College, North Portland Bible College and the Albina Ministerial Alliance.

He earned a bachelor of theology degree from Kansas City College and Bible School, graduating cum laude with further study from the Nazarene Theological Seminary.

Olanrewaju, 44, is a Happy Valley resident and the chief financial officer, regional finance for Providence Health and Services, where he has worked since March 2007. He brings strong finance skills and a solid understanding of the importance of good mobility for transit-dependent populations and youth.

He earned a bachelor degree in business administration from Eastern Washington University and a MBA from Seattle University.

"I am pleased to welcome Dr. Bethel and Hakeem to our board," said TriMet General Manager Fred Hansen. "Their collective knowledge and experience with community involvement, finance and the important role transit serves in the region will make them invaluable assets to TriMet."

The seven-member TriMet board is appointed by the governor and sets policy for the agency as well as appoints the general manager, implements legislation pertaining to transit operations and reviews and approves certain contracts. Board members are volunteers and can serve up to two four-year terms.

shooting night," Jefferson coach Pat Strickland said. "I tip my hat to Mountain View because they put up a great fight. They had us slumping until our seniors stepped up."

Jones, who had 11 points in the first half, didn't score until the second half until his three-point play with 2:26 remaining in the game.

Jones, a 6-foot-9 senior, became the sixth player in Oregon history to score over 800 points in a season. He finished with 810 points.

Jones is being recruited by UCLA, Washington, Oregon, Kentucky and Oklahoma. UCLA coach Ben Howland sat in the second row during Saturday's game.

Wilsonville received eight points each from juniors Kellie Krueger and Emily Dungey. Senior Ashley Walters, who will play at Idaho next year, had a game-high 13 rebounds for the Wildcats.

"Jefferson is really talented," Walters said. "We felt like we were ready, but they were big, long and quick. Some of our passes were a little off."

Ariel Reynolds, the Portland Interscholastic League player of the year, wishes she had another game to play with her younger sister Jordan. Jordan Reynolds had eight of Jefferson's 17 steals and three of its seven assists.

"She's going to be so good next year," Ariel Reynolds said. "But I'm glad we had this chance to play together. It's going to be the most memorable between and my sister, ever."
