Jones Named Parade All Star

Joins Schimmel representing Portland

Parade magazine announced its 54th annual All-America High School Boys Basketball Team last week with Terrence Jones, a 6-foot 9-inch point/wing forward from Jefferson High School, named to the first team.

A week earlier, Franklin High School's Shoni Schimmel was named to the first team of the Parade All-America Girls Basketball Team, giving recognition to another great talent from Portland.

Many members of the past Parade teams have gone on to star in college and the pros, with 183 Parade All-Americans currently playing in the NBA. Among them are LeBron James of the Cleveland Cavaliers, Kobe Bryant of the Los Angeles Lakers, Dwight Howard of the Orlando Magic and Chauncey Billups of the Denver Nuggets.

Other greats of the game who began their basketball careers as Parade All-Americans include Michael Jordan, Kareem Abdul Jabbar, Bill Bradley, Earvin "Magic" Johnson, Patrick Ewing, Shaquille O'Neal, Isaiah Thomas, James Worthy and Pete Maravich.
