Good in the Neighborhood Time

Lineup set for annual celebration

BY LEE PERLMAN THE PORTLAND OBSERVER

Good in the Neighborhood, a popular local event and official Rose Festival showcase for the best of north and northeast Portland, takes the stage this weekend at King School Park, 4815 N.E. Seventh Ave.

The celebration will begin at 11 a.m. Saturday, June 26, with a parade from Emanuel Hospital to Northeast Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard and winding up at the festival site. Live music will draw folks to the park event, open from noon to 9 p.m., Saturday, and again from noon to 7 p.m. on Sunday, June 27.

The schedule for Saturday includes Sol Starr at noon, Julian's Ride at 2:10 p.m., Muthar Ship at 4 p.m., Andrew Stokes at 5:45 p.m., and Soul Vaccination at 7:30 p.m. There will also be an outdoor "mixer" party that night with live music by Kirk Green starting at 6 p.m.

The Sunday schedule includes The Light at noon, Kool Breeze at 1:15 p.m., Norman Sylvester at 2:30

Celebrating Juneteenth

Hundreds of people turned out for Portland's annual Juneteenth celebration on Saturday, June 19.

State Rep. Lew Frederick, District 43, served as Grand Marshall. The parade featured Sable Scott, Miss Black Oregon; Multnomah County Commissioner candidate Loretta Smith, the U.S. Marines Honor Guard, and Clara Peoples, who established the Portland commemoration 38 years ago while working in the Kaiser shipyards during World War II.

Portland Mayor Sam Adams and new Police Chief Mike Reese also attended. KGW News 8 reporter Wayne Havrelly, interviewed Peoples, volunteer Ora Lee Green, and Doris Rush, Juneteenth event chairperson. The Portland Observer was a key sponsor of the
