Buffalo Soldiers marching in the Veterans Parade at Fort Vancouver.

Fort to Honor Buffalo Soldiers

Saturday parade at historical site

The Fort Vancouver National Trust will honor a regiment of black soldiers who served at the Vancouver Barracks in 1899 during an annual Celebrate Freedom Veterans Parade at Fort Vancouver, Saturday, Nov. 6 at 11 a.m.

"Honoring the Buffalo Soldiers" Service at Vancouver Barracks" is the theme of this year's parade. In April 1899, soldiers from Company B of the Twenty-fourth U.S. Infantry Regiment arrived at Vancouver Barracks. This marked the first time in the history of the post that a unit from one of the Army's four African American regiments, known as Buffalo Soldiers, comprised the post's regular garrison of troops.

The parade will take place rain or shine. Participants and parade goers should be prepared for all weather conditions. Street closures will occur starting at 8 a.m. in the parade lineup areas along Evergreen Blvd. and at 10:30 a.m. along the parade route.

The parade grand marshal is First Citizen Royce Pollard, former mayor of Vancouver and commanding officer at Vancouver Barracks. The Wells Fargo stage coach is scheduled to transport the Grand Marshal along the parade route.
