The Macy's Holiday Parade is a Portland tradition that will once again delight young and old when the annual event gets underway on Friday, Nov. 26, the day after Thanksgiving, starting at 9 a.m.

Holiday Parade and Santaland

Tradition to ring in season of good cheer

Macy's will usher in the holiday season on Friday, Nov. 26 with the annual Macy's Holiday Parade and the opening of Santaland.

Straight from the North Pole, Santa Claus will be spreading joy and good cheer as he winds his way through the streets of downtown on his brand new sleigh. Accompanied by inflatable floats, costumed characters and local community groups, Santa will lead the parade to the downtown Macy's where he will open Santaland at 11 a.m. for the 2010 holiday season.

The Macy's Holiday Parade, one of Oregon's most treasured family traditions, will begin promptly at 9 a.m. on the corner of Northwest Park and Davis. The parade will travel east on Northwest Davis to Broadway, south on Broadway to Southwest Alder, east on Alder to Fourth, north on Fourth to Flanders, and west on Flanders to Northwest Park Avenue.

The parade lasts approximately one hour. Those wishing to secure curbside seating are encouraged to arrive early.

Santaland will offer daily photos with Santa through Friday, Dec. 24. The famous monorail will also be on display next to Santaland for candid family photo opportunities.

Author to Continue Writing

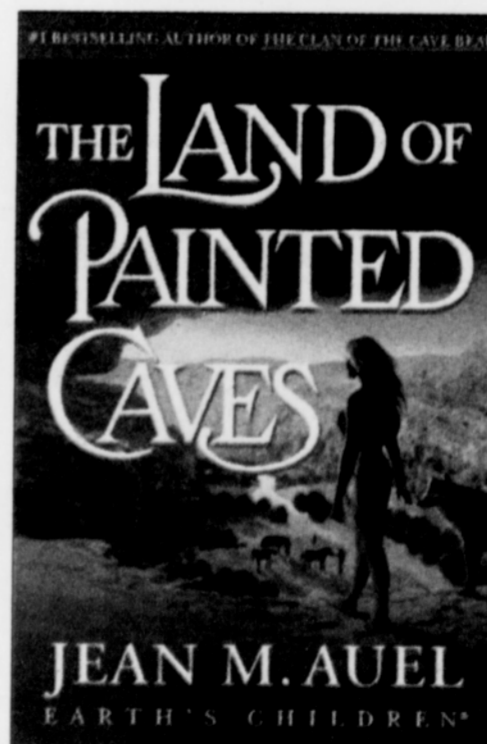

She can't stop thinking about her heroine 'Ayla'

(AP)—Jean M. Auel, the Portland resident and world-renowned author, may not be done with "Earth's Children," after all.

"The Land of Painted Caves," the sixth and supposedly final book of her multimillion-selling series, comes out in March. But Auel says she has not stopped thinking about her heroine Ayla and her adventures in prehistoric times.

"To be honest, I don't feel like I'm through," the author, 74, told The Associated Press during a recent telephone interview. "I still have some material and I'm going to keep on writing. It's what I do."

Fascinated by life from thousands of years ago, to the point where she learned how to make an ice cave and

The sixth book in Jean M. Auel's 'Earth's Children' series is scheduled for release in March.

tan leather, Auel started the series in her early 40s and debuted in 1980 with "The Clan of the Cave Bear," which later became a film of the same name starring Daryl Hannah as Ayla, the orphaned Cro-Magnon raised by Neanderthals.

The first three novels of the series were completed by the mid-1980s but then Auel slowed down. The fourth book, "The Plains of Passage," took five years to write. The fifth, "The Shelters of Stone," took more than a decade. Auel needed eight years for "The Land of Painted Caves."

"I was raising a family, having grandchildren. Life gets in the way," says Auel, who at her current pace would be in her 80s by the time a seventh volume came out. "All the books have been difficult to write. On the first one, I was really spending all my time on that book, 24-7 as they say now. I worked on it from the time I got up to the time I went to bed, every single day. At that time, I just had to write that story. I still have to write that story but it's different. You lose a little drive."
