'Ebenezer Ever After'

Stumptown Stages presents Ebenezer Ever After, sponsored by Kaady Carwash, an original holiday musical starring Portland actress and columnist Margie Boulé as Madame Ubasti, and Wrick Jones as Scrooge.

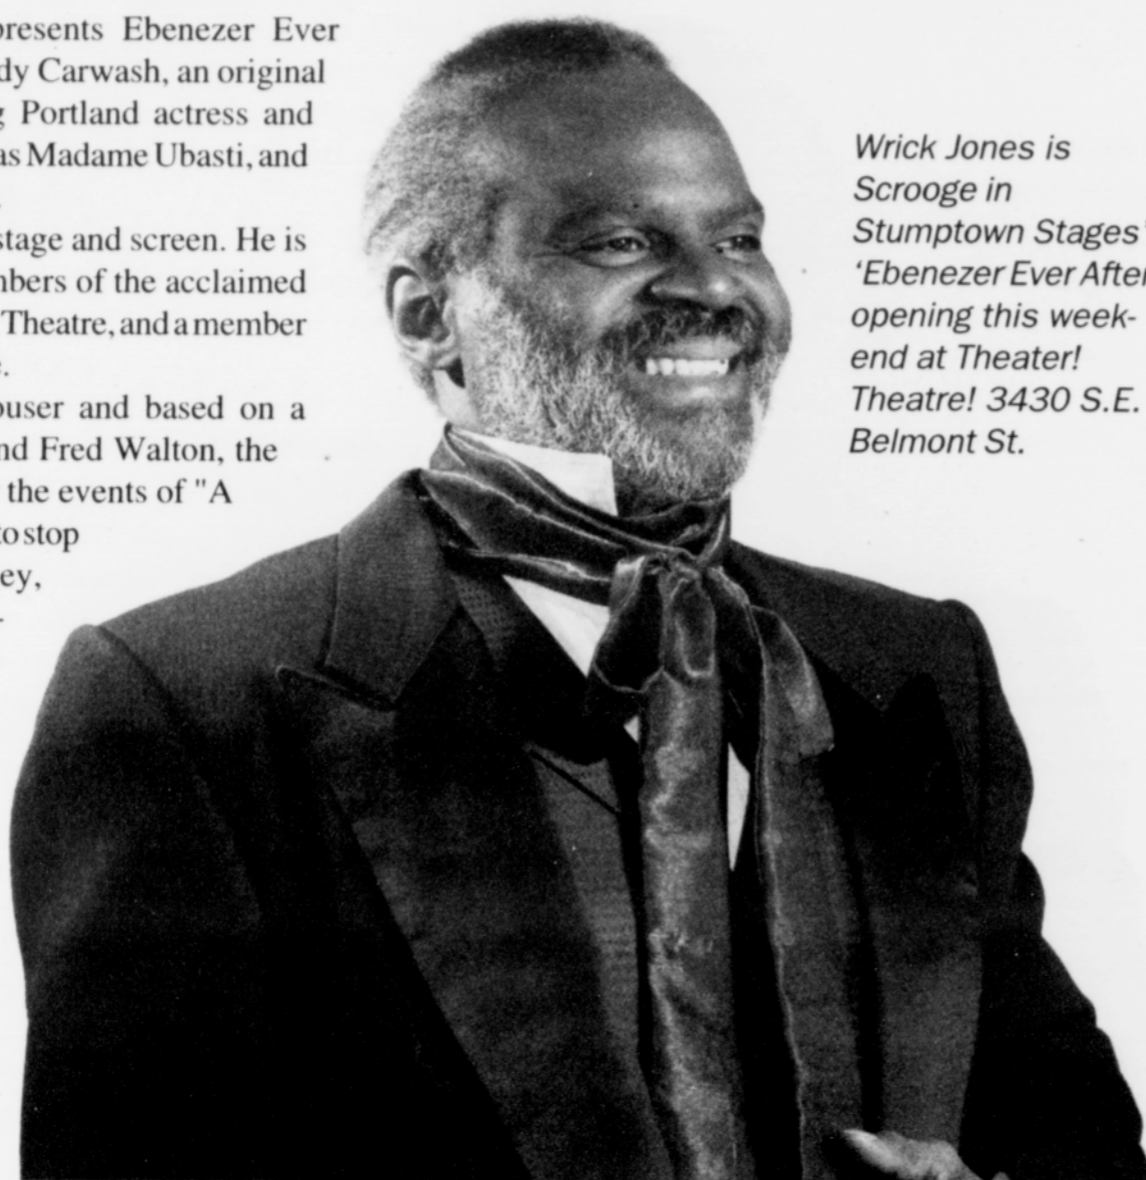

Wrick is a veteran of stage and screen. He is one of the founding members of the acclaimed Portland Black Repertory Theatre, and a member of the Storefront Theatre.

Directed by Kirk Mouser and based on a script by Don Flowers and Fred Walton, the story is set 20 years after the events of "A Christmas Carol." Unable to stop thinking of Jacob Marley, Ebenezer Scrooge convinces a grown-up Tim Cratchit to accompany him on a spiritual quest to free Marley from the chains his former partner still carries through the underworld... without realizing what the attempt might ultimately cost Scrooge himself.

Performances at Theater! Theatre! 3430 S.E. Belmont St., start with a preview on Friday, Nov.

26; and opening on Saturday, Nov. 27; with repeat shows on Thursdays at 7 p.m.; Fridays and Saturdays at 7:30 p.m. and Sundays at 2 p.m., through Friday, Dec. 24. There will also be a special Sunday matinee on Dec. 24 (Christmas Eve) at 2 p.m.

Embracing the Season

One of Portland's most beloved actresses and singers, Susannah Mars, explores the expectations of what the holiday home is 'supposed to be' and the challenges the season can mean for each of us in "Mars on Life - Live!" With a twinkle in her eye and fruitcake under her arm, Mars lifts her voice and charms audiences into banishing their holiday baggage and embracing the season. The holiday shows with a revolving door of special guests is currently underway and runs through Dec. 19 at Artists Repertory Theater, Alder Stage 1515 S.W. Morrison. Tickets are available by calling 503-241-1278 or visiting the website, artistsrep.org.

Miss Black Oregon Search

Kari Herinckx, 2010 Miss Black Oregon USA

If the slipper fits, you could be crowned 2011 Miss Black Oregon USA and receive awards of $3,500 in scholarships and prizes.

The Miss Black Oregon Scholarship Foundation has begun their annual search for a talented young lady between the ages of 17 and 27 who has a grade point average of 2.5 and a love for higher education. Kari Herinckx, a student at the University of Oregon, is the reigning queen.

Hopeful contestants for 2011 will prepare for the scholarship competition in an intensive eight weeks of pampering, personal development and life skills building.

The pageant winner will attend peak performance seminars, where they will be tutored in theater drama, acting, choreographed dance, and voice coaching. Lucky misses will also be graced in runway, modeling, makeup, and etiquette classes along with the chance to train in front of the camera for interview skills. Fundraising workshops, public venues, and field trips are just a few more items on the list to complete in the contest.

One winner will represent Oregon in the national 2011 Miss Black USA competition in Washington, D.C. for $20,000 in scholarships and prizes.

If you believe in dreams come true, join this exciting quest and represent your fellow community by calling 971-409-8687. For more instruction, visit missblackoregon.org and apply.
