Hmong, and other nationalities. A rare and par excellent group, they are always in high demand. Recently they performed on the steps of the state Capitol and received rave reviews. Her goal is to have them perform at the White House for President Obama.

She speaks highly of the co-writer of 'Emerge,' Delilah Rashell.

"I couldn't partnered with a better individual; her gifts speak for her loud and clear. Her productions have toured the country, playing to over 1.5 million people. I was honored to have been hand-picked by her to play the lead role of "Earnestine" in her hit stage play Somebody Oughta Tell God Thank You. I was privileged to share that stage with people like Vickie Winans, Yolanda Adams, and David Sea from Dennis Edwards and the Temptation Review who played my husband.

"Delilah believed in me when I didn't. Touring with her and her show has been one of the highlights of my life and now for her to be my co-writer is awesome, absolutely awesome!"

Lady Kitty's life is the ideal picture of what I believe God has in mind for all of us. She takes nothing and creates something great. She's a one woman operation with many talents yet strong in them all while giving God the glory each day and never herself

"We are more like sisters than business partners, we often agree to disagree but respect each other's opinions and decide jointly on all decisions the way that it should be," she said.

Perhaps you have seen Lady Kitty perform excerpts from the show at one of the local churches in the area. She has been to Portland twice and will be returning in advance of the Jan. 28-29 shows.

She's the pretty lady with the big beautiful voice, and to know that there's six more women like her coming to Portland for 'Emerge,' it just makes me want to run and get tickets!

Tickets are on sale at the Portland Center for the Performing Arts box office and at all Ticketmaster locations or go to the website, emergetheplay.com.

The play has mature subject matter and parental guidance is suggested.
