Packers, Steelers set to Battle Sunday

Both teams have Oregon connections

BY CLIFF PFENNING
 THE PORTLAND OBSERVER

One-time Oregonian Aaron Rodgers will lead the Green Bay Packers against the six-time champion Pittsburgh Steelers in the Super Bowl Sunday in Dallas, Texas.

More than 100,000 fans are expected for the game, which annually attracts the largest television audience of any program worldwide. The game can be seen on the FOX Network (KPTV Channel 12) with kick-off set for 3:29 p.m.

Pittsburgh is playing in its third Super Bowl in six years having won in 2006 over the Seattle Seahawks and 2009 over the Arizona Cardinals. Quarterback Ben Roethlisberger, who sat out the first six games of the season due to a league-imposed suspension, threw for 3,200 yards and 17 touchdowns as the Steelers finished 12-4. He guided the team to its previous two Super Bowl titles.

The Steelers are also led by safety Troy Polamalu, who was named the Associated Press Defensive Player of the Year on Monday. Polamalu graduated from Douglas High School in southern Oregon.

Rodgers attended Portland's Jesuit High School for a term before his family moved to Chico, Calif., where he developed into a standout quarterback and played at the University of California. He threw for 3,922 yards and 28 touchdowns this season as the Packers finished 10-6.

The Packers are led defensively by linebacker Clay Matthews, who was a finalist for Defensive Player of the Year. Matthews, who led a poll among voters on nfl.com for Defensive POY, is the older brother of Casey Matthews, a standout linebacker for the University of Oregon.

Green Bay, which has won three Super Bowls since the National Football League and American Football League merged in 1966, earned a playoff spot on the final week of the regular season and played all three of its postseason games on the road.

The Packers are favored to win by 3 points.

Super Bowl XLV kicks off Sunday at 3:29 p.m. in Dallas, Texas.
