Explore 'The Universe in Infrared'

Mt. Hood Community College will present the planetarium show "The University in Infrared," on Monday, March 7 at 7 p.m. and 8:15 p.m. at the college's Planetarium Sky Theater on the main campus in Gresham. The show explores objects from space that we have only recently been able to see. Besides the Hubble telescope, there are other telescopes that are devoted to seeing the universe in infrared. These allow astronomers to observe new processes such as star birth and the extent of dust clouds between the stars.

Some of the latest pictures from the new European space telescopes as well as those from the Hubble, WISE and Spitzer space telescopes will be presented, followed by a tour of the night sky on the planetarium dome. Children are welcome to attend. The planetarium is wheelchair accessible. Admission for the general public is $2 and free for MHCC students.

Native American Culture Celebrated

The public is invited to attend a traditional Native American pow wow on Saturday, March 5, from noon to 10:30 p.m. at Covington Middle School, 11200 N.E. Rosewood Rd., in Vancouver.

The annual event celebrates the culture of Native Americans and is sponsored by the Evergreen, Vancouver and Battle Ground School Districts.

The Pow Wow will feature two grand entrances, the first at 1 p.m. and the second at 6 p.m. Native American dancers will participate representing various tribes throughout the Northwest. Admission is free.

Former Evergreen School District employee Gary Wallace will be honored at 3 p.m. for his dedication and support of the Native American Education Program throughout his 41 years with the district.

The program's parent committee will prepare traditional foods - such as fry bread and Indian tacos and the sale of Native American items are part of the fundraising for the organization. Vendors throughout the Northwest will also be selling Native American arts and crafts.
