No. Fest in St. Johns

Music, dance, theater and more comes to the St. Johns Neighborhood of north Portland during No. Fest, on Friday, June 24 and Saturday, June 25. The main stage is at 8600 N. Lombard. Other events are at multiple business sites. A No. Fest program guide is available online at nofest.net.

Global Water Dance

Event to draw attention to safeguards

At 5 p.m. on Saturday, June 25, the Cathedral Park riverfront under the St. Johns Bridge in north Portland will be the site for Portland's Global Water Dance.

As 5 o'clock moves through time zones from Australia to Hawaii, 55 communities will dance together over a 24-hour period to draw attention to the global need to safeguard clean water supplies and protect waterways for the benefit of all.

The hour-long community dance is free and open to the public. A group of dancers will perform a water story, with pre-recorded music as the common thread linking it to all other Global Water Dances.

Group improvisation will be used so that all people, including those with no prior dance experience, can join in a group water dance. The opening ceremony will give voice to local water issues and celebrate the ways that water has contributed to Portland's vitality.

The dance closes with simple unison movements that everyone throughout the world will do as an artistic expression of human connections to water.

Those interested in joining will meet at Cathedral Park, under St. Johns Bridge by the intersection of North Baltimore and Bradford Streets by 4:45 p.m. For information, contact Bev Burke at 503-636-4203.

The Global Water Dance is the final event of Creative Dance Week and a Portland gathering of the International Association for Creative Dance. Another free, open community creative dance will be held on Thursday, June 23 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Peninsula Park Rose Garden, 699 N Ainsworth St. For further information about the Peninsula Park dance, contact Yael Schweitzer at 971-404-8249.
