Thrill to the Blues and Fight Hunger

Waterfront festival features 4 days of magic

You're invited to thrill to the best blues in the world while relaxing on the banks of the beautiful Willamette River - all the while smiling at the thought that you are helping Oregon Food Bank fight hunger. That's the magic of the 2011 Safeway Waterfront Blues Festival, Friday, July 1 to Monday, July 4.

The 24th annual event presented by First Tech Federal Credit Union brings more than 125 stellar performances on five stages plus fireworks, workshops, dances, blues cruises and more.

The festival is also Oregon Food Bank's largest annual fundraiser. One-hundred percent of donations support Oregon Food Bank's mission to eliminate hunger and its root causes.

"This year's festival includes world-renowned artists, including our strongest zydeco line-up ever," said Peter Dammann, festival talent coordinator. "Overall, this festival will be amazing."

Lucinda Williams

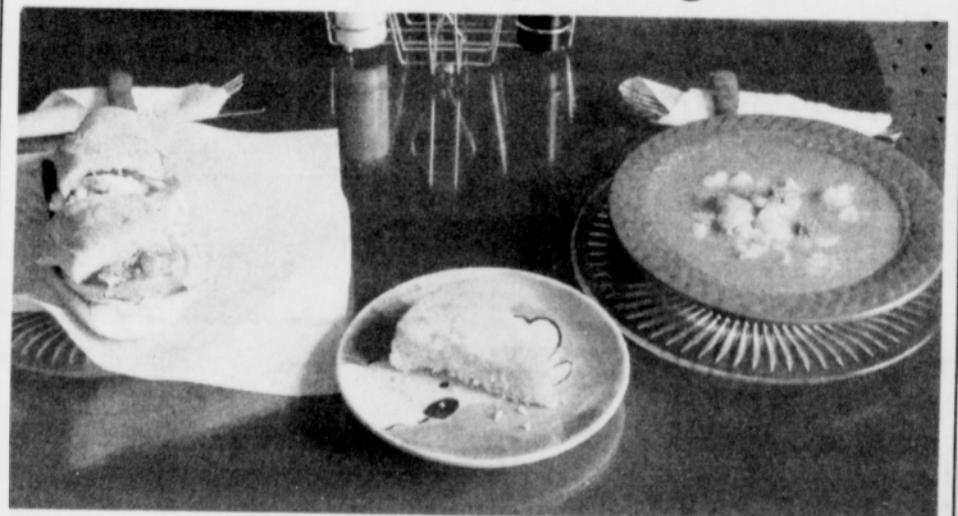

On Monday, July 4th there will be a spectacular display of fireworks, the largest display in Oregon. The fireworks show starts at 10 p.m., after the evening's final performance and the National Anthem, performed by Linda Hornbuckle.

Admission to the 2011 Safeway Waterfront Blues Festival, including the fireworks show, is a donation of $10 (or more) plus two cans (or more) of nonperishable food.

The powerhouse roster includes six-time Grammy Award winner Buddy Guy, Maceo Parker, Robert Cray, Lucinda Williams, Chubby Carrier and the Bayou Swamp Band, Rebirth Brass Band, Ivan Neville's Dumpstaphunk, Orgone, Bobby Radcliff, Black Joe Lewis and the Honeybears, the Honey Island Swamp Band, Steve Riley and the Mamou Playboys, Chris Cain, Meschiya Lake and the Little Big Nathan James, James Harman, Bruce Horns, and Corey Ledet and his Conte, Preston Shannon, Grady Zydeco Band. For a schedule, visit the festival website waterfrontbluesfest.com.

Free Summer Concerts at Parks

This summer neighborhood parks near you are hosting a variety of free concerts featuring funk, pop, rock, Afro beat, country, salsa, swing, Celtic, jazz, soul, and Zydeco.

Portland Parks and Recreation has worked with neighborhoods to discover the music each would like featured in their local park, then area businesses lend sponsor support to make the concerts possible.

The Twangshifters will open the first summer concert of the season at Mt. Tabor Park on Tuesday, July 5 and concerts will continue through a performance by The Midnight Serenaders at east Portland's Ventura Park on Aug. 31.

Last year, over 100 neighborhood sponsors brought 41 concerts to parks throughout the city. The current concert schedule is posted on portlandparks.org or call 503-823-5446.
