FAITH Healthier Happy Meal Coming

Menu draws praise from First Lady

Fast-food giant McDonald's has unveiled a revamped menu in a move to offer healthier options and join the fight against obesity, drawing praise from First Lady Michelle Obama.

The chain will add a serving of fruit or vegetable to its "Happy Meals," which are aimed at children, and shrink the portion of French fries.

The new French fry holders will contain 1.1 ounces (31 grams) of potatoes, down from 2.4 ounces. The meals also will include apple slices, carrots, raisins, pineapple slices or other fresh produce. The change will cut calories by an average of 20 percent.

The move comes amid pressure from health advocacy groups to get the fast-food industry, blamed for
