Connecting Fibers of Community

Emerging and longtime fiber artists are exhibiting their works for the entire month of September at the Project Grow Gallery at Port City, 2156 N. Williams Ave.

Project Grow is a space for community collaboration where people can engage in conversation and action to advocate for human rights, the value of art in society, urban farming, and the pursuit of passions.

Featured artists include work by Andrew Auble, Ricky Bearghost, Tess Bidelspach, Stephanie Brachmann, Viola Brown, Jennifer Lingford, Heather MacKenzie, Megan Mesloh, Eric Person and Cindy Steiler.

The gallery is open Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Native American Center Powwow

The Native American Youth and Family Center, 5135 N.E. Columbia Blvd., hosts its second annual Neerchokikoo Powwow Friday, Sept. 9 and Saturday, Sept. 10.

The powwow is a place where native and non-native people come together to sing, dance, celebrate friendships and families and cultivate new relationships. All members of the community are welcome to honor their proud heritage and explore food and art from native vendors and artists.

The event will kick off at 7 p.m. on Friday evening with the grand entry; on Saturday, the powwow will include a range of dances (from Junior to Golden Age) and an honoring ceremony of volunteers and partners in the native community.
