Parks Programs for Seniors 55+

Portland Parks & Recreation is registering now for senior recreation programs and classes, a great opportunity to stay active.

From golf, hiking and regional trips to watercolor, yoga and pottery, there are activities offered for all ages. For a one-time fee, golfers ages 65 and up can obtain a card for reduced green fees at city courses.

When necessary, a senior recreation team works with parks bureau employees to ensure that anyone and everyone can participate in all activities. Mobility ratings for activities, including stairs to climb and time spent on your feet are indicated as needed in the PP&R catalog.

For more information, call Kristine Canham at 503-823-4328 or visit portlandparks.org.

Genealogy Library Grand Opening

People interested in exploring their ancestry, seeking birth parents or learning how to preserve their family memories can take advantage of a series of free events sponsored by the Genealogical Forum of Oregon.

The nonprofit genealogy library has moved into the historic Ford Building at 2505 S.E. 11th Ave. and is celebrating its new location with seminars, workshops and special events through Saturday, Oct. 8.

Board Director-at-Large Laurel Smith says that the organization's events and resources can help people do much more than trace a family tree.

"You can find the history that helps reveal the lives of your ancestors—who they were, what they did and what was happening around them. This kind of context breathes life into the past and generates excitement about your family."
