Episcopal School Leader Chosen

Oregon Episcopal School will install Mo Copeland as Head of School on Friday, Oct. 7. She replaces interim Head of School Kathy Layendecker as the top administrator. The school provides a college-preparatory curriculum for students in pre-kindergarten through 12th grade.

Copeland spent 11 years as head of Saint George's K-12 school in Spokane. Before that she was an administrator and physics teacher for 11 years in Seattle.

Copeland said she is excited by the school's inquiry-based academic program in both the humanities and sciences that have helped students achieve national recognition and acceptance at top colleges and universities nationwide.
