

The INSIDE

This page
Sponsored by:

Fred Meyer

What's on your list today?

OPINION

pages 6-7

METRO

pages 9

SUSTAINABILITY

pages 10-11

Arts & ENTERTAINMENT

pages 12-16

CAREER & EDUCATION

page 16-17

CLASSIFIEDS

page 18

DECEMBER CALENDAR

page 19

FOOD

page 20

Correction from 'Vancouver NAACP Membership Drive'

In an effort to build support for the Vancouver chapter of the NAACP, the organization will hold a free-pancake breakfast and membership drive Saturday, Dec. 17 located at the Clark County YWCA at 3609 Main St.

For more information, visit www.naacpvanc.org.

LOCAL NEWS

Protesters set up a picket line at a Port of Portland terminal Monday as part of a West Coast "day of action." Anti-Wall Street protesters along the West Coast joined an effort to blockade some of the nation's busiest shipping cargo docks. (AP photo)

Port Shuts Down with Protest

Two anti-Wall Street demonstrators arrested

Hours after the Port of Portland shut down two of its four terminals when police arrested two people and seized weapons Monday, about 400 anti-Wall Street protesters briefly disrupted a third terminal.

Protesters blocked movement Monday night into an area where workers were attempting to unload a ship in the Rivergate industrial area in north Portland. The terminal tenant responded by sending workers home. By about 5:30 p.m., the protesters announced they were leaving.

The port pre-emptively shut down two terminals before Monday's demonstration was to begin. Security concerns were raised after police found two people in camouflage clothing with a gun, sword and walkie-talkies who said they were doing reconnaissance.

Kari Koch, a spokeswoman for Occupy Portland, said the two people taken into custody were not part of the demonstration.

continued ▼ on page 4

Mother Pleas for Missing Daughter

A Gresham mother is making a desperate plea for help to find her 15-year-old daughter, who she claims disappeared with an older man and Internet predator.

Kyrsten Roth went missing Dec. 3 after an evening of shopping with her mother, Michelle Roth. When the girl did not come downstairs from her bedroom the next morning, her mother realized that she was not home. After checking with her daughter's friends, she filed a police report and began to look at home phone records.

It was then that she noticed phone calls to a number in California for the past few months – the last of which took place at 2:55 a.m. on Dec. 4.

Kyrsten Roth

The mother contacted police in Susansville, Calif., who went to the home associated with the phone number Kyrsten had been calling.

According to victim's advocate and family spokesperson Michelle Bart, the police said that it looked like no one was home at the house. When the police called the phone number Kyrsten had been calling, Bart says that the police found the man who answered to be incredible, as if he were hiding something when he claimed to be in Vallejo, Calif.

Kyrsten was reportedly spotted Dec. 7 at night at a coffee shop across the street from her high school. According to the owner of the cafe, a man drove by and picked her up. He has been described as in his 20s, with receding blond hair, driving a white, two-door sedan.