Tribute co-producer and Stevie Wonder band drummer Tyrone Hendrix said, "It's going to be a phenomenal experience gracing the stage

The afternoon prior to the show at Jimmy Mak's, Nate Watts will be conducting a clinic for kids and adults of all performance levels to learn about music.

Participants will have a chance to listen, learn and participate in a Q&A session to obtain additional incite and knowledge about the music industry as musicians, performers and business people. For more information about the clinic, call 310-869-8030.

Italian-themed Jazz Showcase

Italian trumpet icon Enrico Rava with special guest the Tony Pacini Trio will bring an Italian-themed night of jazz to Winningstad Theatre, downtown, on Saturday, Feb. 18 at 7:30 p.m. as part of the U.S. Bank Portland Jazz Festival presented by Alaska Airlines.

Rava, one of the most accomplished and internationally recognized musicians from Italy, will make his Portland debut on the festival's opening weekend.

At an early age, Rava traded in his trombone for a trumpet after hearing Miles Davis, whose influence is obvious in Rava's music.

The Tony Pacini Trio, a long-standing Portland tradition featuring bassist Ed Bennett, and drummer Mel Brown, will play songs by Italian-American musicians, including Henry Mancini, George Wallington (a.k.a. Giacinto Figlia), Frank Rosolino, Frank Sinatra, and Tony Bennett.
