

The INSIDE

This page
Sponsored by:

Fred Meyer

What's on your list today?

HOUSING

page 4-11

OPINION

pages 8-9

METRO

page 11

Arts & ENTERTAINMENT

pages 12-15

CLASSIFIEDS

pages 16

CALENDAR

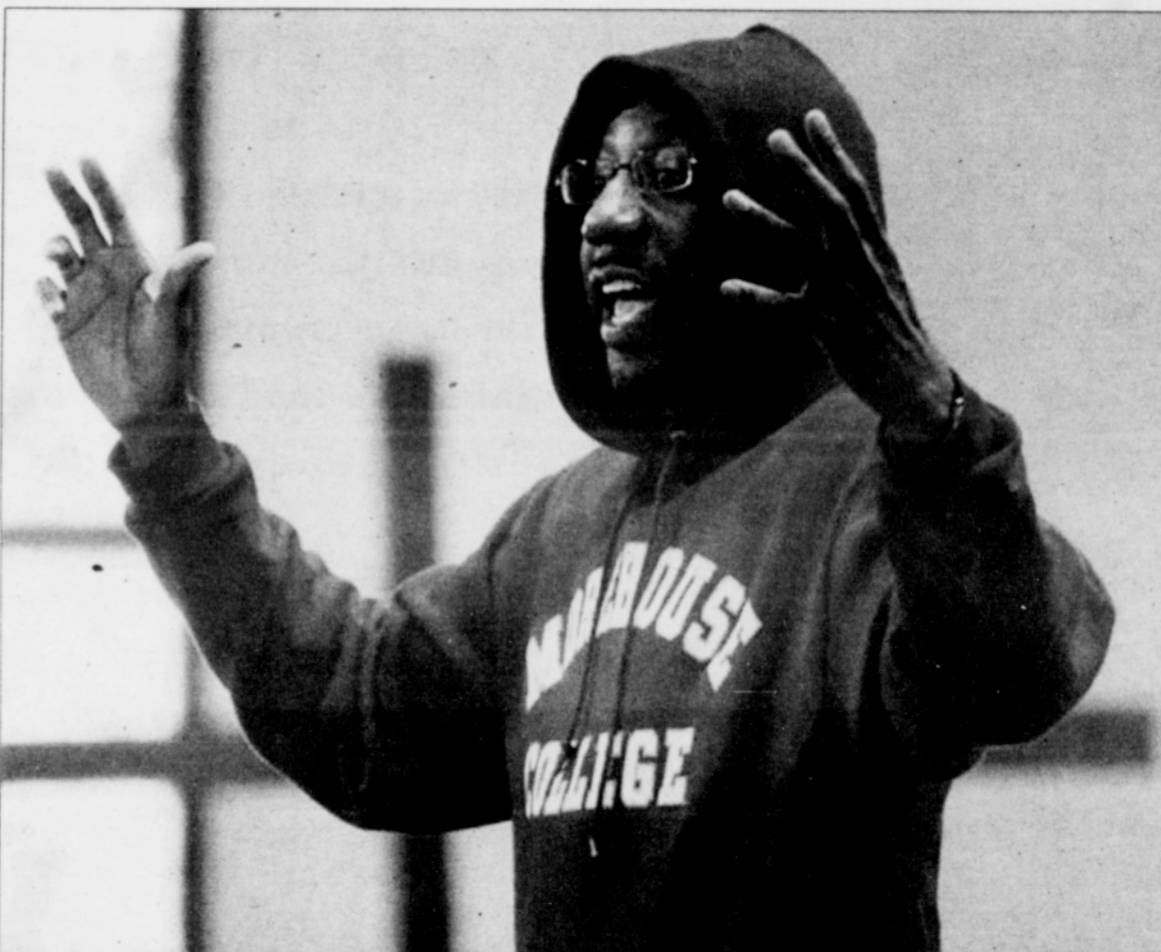

page 18

FOOD

page 20

LOCAL NEWS

Rev. Raphael Warnock wears a hoodie during his morning sermon Sunday at the Ebenezer Baptist Church in Atlanta. Church goers were invited to wear hoodies to show their support for justice in the case of Trayvon Martin, an unarmed Florida teenager who was wearing a hoodie on the night he was killed. (AP photo)

Hoodies Up for Trayvon Martin Community demands justice for slain teenager

Wearing a hooded sweatshirt has become a symbol of unity for a large contingency of Portland residents and community leaders showing solidarity for the family of an unarmed black teenager who was shot and killed by a neighborhood watch volunteer. Trayvon Martin was wearing a hoodie as he walked home on a rainy night in a gated community in Stanford, Fla., on Feb. 26. The man who shot him, 28-year-old George continued ▼ on page 7

Portland firefighters rescue a horse Monday which fell into an old septic tank in a northeast Portland backyard.

Horse Rescue from Backyard Hole

Portland firefighters had an unusual rescue Monday when a horse fell into a septic tank in a northeast Portland backyard.

The 34-year-old mare, named Roxy, fell into a sinkhole created by the old septic tank at Northeast Gertz Road and 13th Avenue.

Firefighters used a hose and strap to pull the horse to safety. Other than a small cut on her leg, she appeared to be fine.