Outside ^{the} Box

Sharing a journey of racial discovery

Outside the Box tells Lacey Schwartz's story of growing up in a typical upper-middle-class Jewish household in Woodstock, N.Y., with loving parents and a strong sense of her Jewish identity — despite the open questions from those around her about how a white girl could have such dark skin.

She believes her family's explanation that her looks were inherited from her dark-skinned Sicilian grandfather. But when her parents abruptly split, her gut started to tell her something different. At age 18, she finally confronts her mother and learns the truth: her biological father was not the man who raised her, but a black man named Rodney with whom her mother had an affair.

Afraid of losing her relationship with her parents, Lacey doesn't openly acknowledge her newly discovered black identity with her white family. When her biological father dies shortly before Lacey's 30th birthday, the family secret can stay hidden no longer.

Watch the in-progress film and speak with the director, Lacey Schwartz at the Oregon Jewish Museum, 1953 N.W. Kearney St., on Monday, May 14 at 7 p.m.
