Summer Camps Help Kids Stay Active

The Oregon Zoo's popular summer camps return Monday, June 18, with programs for children 4 years of age through eighth grade.

"Zoo camp is a great way for kids to stay active, continue learning over the summer, and make a strong connection with nature," said Jennifer Whitener, program supervisor.

Each weeklong camp includes crafts, songs, stories, snacks, train rides, animal visitors and in-depth tours of the zoo. Camp activities, specifically planned for the interests of each age group, cover everything from designing your own zoo to learning about veterinary medicine.
