

Dental Hygiene Program Grows

Clark College receives gift to expand training

The Firstenburg Foundation has donated $1.5 million earmarked for the college's Dental Hygiene program that will add patient chairs to its training clinic, renovate existing spaces for a digital radiography suite and lab, and add paperless charting software.

Clark College President Robert K. Knight announced the gift and its benefit to the region during Clark's 76th commencement ceremony.

"Taught by outstanding faculty, the Dental Hygiene program is recognized as a leader in training. Our students and graduates work in dental offices across our region. Clark students and alumni also serve as volunteers—helping children and adults who otherwise wouldn't have access to dental care. This generous donation will have a huge impact—not only for our college—but for our community," said Knight.

Bill Firstenburg also addressed the class of 2012, acknowledging his family's commitment to the community and encouraging graduates to give their time, talents and treasures.

"My mother and father loved this community. They also believed strongly in the power of education. Clark College trains our workforce. Clark College educates our leaders. Clark College changes lives," he said.

The Firstenburg gift allows Clark to increase the number of patient chairs in its teaching clinic by six, thereby providing more opportunities for student enrollment. Historically, the Dental Hygiene program has had a waiting list for its 24 slots each academic year. That number will now jump to 30 openings.

With the addition of paperless charting technology and an advanced radiology suite, students will be workforce ready upon graduation.

Database for Arts Education

The Oregon Arts Commission has launched a new statewide searchable database to help the public understand the range of arts classes offered in Oregon schools. Color-coded graphics, for example, chart offerings in the visual arts, music, theater, dance and media arts at every school in the state. The database is free and accessible to the public.

According to Deb Vaughn, the commission's arts education coordinator, the data was pulled from existing Oregon Department of Education reports that bring schools into compliance with No Child Left Behind requirements.

Between 2009-10 and 2010-11, public school arts education courses experienced a one percent drop overall. But on further examination, 75 schools added arts courses and 82 dropped them.
