People of the Drum

Cultures converge to celebrate world beats

It's time to celebrate the universal voice of the drum! Portland Taiko is joining the Obo Addy Legacy Project, along with Native American and Aztec drum and dance ensembles, for a "People of the Drum" series of performances.

The groups will share their individual traditions and songs, and come together as an extraordinary ensemble. They include Obo Addy, a Ghanaian drum and dance ensemble; Medicine Bear, a Native American drum and dance ensemble; Mexica Tiahui, an Aztec drum and dance ensemble, and Portland Taiko, an Asian-American drum ensemble.

The free performances are each scheduled for 3:30 p.m. on the afternoons of Sunday, July 15 at Director's Park in downtown Portland; Aug. 19 at the Mt. Scott Community Center in southeast Portland; and Oct. 21 at University Park in north Portland.

Founded in 1994, Portland Taiko was the first professional taiko (Japanese drum performance)ensemble in the Pacific Northwest.
