Mistaken Identities

Lakewood Theatre Company kicks off summer with the rollicking comedy See How They Run.

Directed by Scott Parker, the play opens Friday, July 13 and continues until Aug. 19 at the Lakewood Center for the Arts, 368 S. State St. in Lake Oswego.

The story takes place in an English village near the end of World War II, when a local spinster and busybody suspects her vicar's wife, a vivacious actress, of having an affair and determines to expose the situation.

Add an escaped prisoner, a handsome actor, a visiting bishop, a round priest and some meddling neighbors, and anything can happen in the delightful romp of mistaken identities.

Ticket prices are $28 for adults and $25 for seniors. Additional discounts are available for groups and students. Contact the Lakewood Theatre Box Office at 503-635-3901 or order online at lakewood-center.org.

Aesop Rock is coming to Wonder Ballroom, 128 N.E. Russell St., on Thursday, July 19.

The New York-bred and San Francisco-based rapper is touring in support of his newest album Skelethon via Rhymesayers.

Aesop's live shows are known for his raw energy and the way he delivers his deep and cerebral rhymes. He will be bringing pals Rob Sonic and DJ Big Wiz along for the ride as well.
