no one ever finds out.' This is a good standard for anybody."

Johnson continues, "I put relationships first. Don't focus on going after money, go after relationships. I go the extra mile to maintain relationships."

Johnson is a frequent partner with the Portland housing developer Proud Ground.

His relationship with the non-profit began in 2010 when Project Manager Steve Whitson asked Wesley to bid on some home renovation projects.

Whitson values his organization's partnership with Johnson, saying, "Wesley does what he says he will do; he is careful, professional, and experienced. I respect his work and the effort he puts into our homes."

"Working with Proud Ground to help folks get into a quality home, and to do it in a way that makes sure they can really afford it—it's very motivating for me," said Johnson, describing one of the benefits of working with the nonprofit. "It's been a real pleasure working with Proud Ground."

Johnson reflects about his business, "I found the thing I really like to do and I am best at."
