Halloween Calendar

FrightTown -- Three of the most horrifying haunted houses return to Memorial Coliseum during the month of October for FrightTown, a production co-produced by the local 1031 Community Theater group. Parents are warned about the scary nature of the haunted houses and should use caution when bringing young children. Admission is $20. For more information, visit frighttown.com.

Halloween Carnival -- Dress in your Halloween best for a night filled with ghostly games, frightening good food, creepy crafts and many more festival events. The Halloween Carnival at the Mt. Scott Community Center, 5530 S.E. 72nd Ave. will take place on Friday, Oct. 26, from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Halloween Monster Mash -- The Peninsula Park Community Center, 700 N. Rosa Parks Way, takes place Friday, Oct. 26 from 6 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. The frighteningly fun and free family event will include games, crafts, food, prizes, face painting and more. Costumes are highly encouraged.

Haunted Maize -- Every Friday and Saturday night in October, and of course on Halloween, the Haunted Maize at the Pumpkin Patch on Sauvie Island opens its un lit pathways to let brave patrons wonder through four acres of terrifying twists and turns. The haunt is perfect for families, teens and Halloween enthusiasts. For more information, call 503-621-7110 or visit portlandmaze.com.

Harvest Hoopla -- The Charles Jordan Community Center, 9009 N. Foss Rd., hosts a Halloween night of fun. Games and activities focused on children, toddlers to elementary age, Wednesday, Oct. 31 from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Classic Fright and a Puppet Murder -- Exploring the depths of sanity, morality and murder, Tears of Joy Theatre presents Edgar Allan Poe's the Tell-Tale Heart, each Friday and Saturday through Oct. 27 at Portland State University's Lincoln Studio. Performances are at 8 p.m.

Eco Horror Film Spooktacular -- Christian Divine returns to the historic Hollywood Theatre to present an epic monster mash-up of the powerful 1970s dystopia, the cinematic mutation of the era's most toxic shockers, Them!, Soylent Green, Willard, Piranha, Stalker, Godzilla vs. the Smog Monster and so many more. Monday, Oct 29 at 7 p.m.

Floating Halloween Party -- Cruise the Portland Spirit, if you dare, for an evening of frightful fun at the Zombie Prom! Put on your best zombie costume and come on board for DJ, dancing, costume contests and the only floating Halloween dance party in town. Wednesday, Oct. 31 at 8 p.m. $20 per person.

Sellwood Spook-tacular -- The Sellwood Community Center, 1436 S.E. Spokane, hosts a Halloween carnival and café on Monday, Oct. 29 from 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. Bring two cans of food and receive four tickets. Feel free to bring more cans to donate to the Oregon Food Bank.

Halloween at the University of Portland -- Local neighborhood children and children of UP faculty and staff are invited to trick-or-treat through the University of Portland residence halls on Halloween night, Wednesday, Oct. 31 from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. Open to all children sixth grade and under.
